BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Determined to take the third game of the series and thus keep the White Sox from getting one of the contests, the Red Sox faced the Comiskey tribe this afternoon with all sails set for another walkaway.

The fine exhibitions which they have been putting up caused the fans to turn out in goodly numbers. Washday doesn't always bring a big crowd, but to-day they were there like ducks, all prepared to face the hottest kind of weather to see the teams go at it again.

The sun beat down on the heads of the bugs in the unshaded stands until it seemed that they would surely succumb to the heat, but every time they had a chance they got up and yelled themselves hoarse for their favorites.

Billy Sullivan was greatly worried over whom he would send to the pitcher's office and had his whole staff out practising. Big Ed Walsh's arm has been out of working order for some time, and this greatly cripples the White Sox. Young Scott showed up very well in the warm-up, but Sully refused to give his pitcher's name until the last minute. Manager Lake didn't have much to choose from either and would not tip his mitt as to who would work.

Amby McConnell, who has been at his home resting up, was expected to report for work this morning, but did not arrive, and French was sent to second again.

WOMAN HURT IN RUNAWAY ON BRIDGE

Mrs. George S. Morgan of New London, Ct., wife of a prominent doctor, had a narrow escape from death to-day on Harvard bridge, when two black horses drawing a victoria in which she and her mother were seated ran away.

Mrs. Morgan was thrown directly in the pat of a trolley car as the horses lurched along the bridge, but the motorman, seeing the runaway approaching stopped the car just as the woman fell. She hit the fender and suffered several cuts and bruises. At the Cambridge Relief Hospital it is said that she was not seriously injured.

Mrs. Morgan and her mother, Mrs. Robert Henderson, wife of the wealthy carriage maker of Massachusetts avenue and Russell street, were going to the station and Mrs. Morgan was to take the train home. As the carriage went through Cambridgeport, some boys kicking a large basket about the street, frightened the horses.

After Mrs. Morgan had been thrown out the coachman succeeded in getting the horses partly under control, and before the other end of the bridge was reached some men caught the frightened animals by the bridle and brought them to a standstill.

WILLARD MAKES A FINE AERO FLIGHT

MINEOLA, L. I., Aug. 9.—His sixteenth successful flight with the Curtis aeroplane was made to-day by C. Foster Willard. Flying close to the ground, Willard essayed to make a circle about a mile and a half in circumference, but was not able to complete the circle owing to the presence of unexpected elevations of the ground, trees or cornfields. He made five long, curved flights, however, at high speed.

In one flight he had an interesting race with an automobile. Going at the rate of forty miles an hour, the motor car cut straight across the circle while Mr. Willard in the aeroplane followed the arc of the circle. The aeroplane reached the landing place in advance of the automobile.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 9.—Pittsburg will face rather a different proposition in the Boston Doves game this afternoon, as the Doves returned here this morning in a confident state of mind, due to the winning of two games yesterday among the minor leagues.

This double win of the Boston team, from nines that are strong in this vicinity and who have matched up well against the big leaguers in exhibition games has restored their confidence, and Pittsburg, while wanting every game of the seven, is afraid that trouble will happen in the fight to retain the league leadership.

It looked like Leifield on the slab for Pittsburg, with Gibson receiving, as none of the others warmed up hard. Manager Harry Smith tried out most of his staff, but caught longer behind Tuckey, and he is slated to go on the mound.

GIRL KILLED IN CEMETERY

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 9.—The body of Anna Schumacher, seventeen years old, was found half buried in a secluded spot in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery to-day. The girl had been murdered. She left home Saturday afternoon to decorate the grave of a relative and the family and police had been searching for her.

The body was discovered by Constables Baker and Freedman of Charlotte, N. Y. Marks of heels in the earth as though a body had been dragged along first caught their eyes. Constable Baker followed this trail for some distance and the grave was discovered. The body had been placed in a depression and covered over with dirt.

The police were told that the girl had no men friends in particular and had no mental weakness which might lead her to wander off.

CANNON SAYS HE WILL NOT RETIRE

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Speaker Joseph G. Cannon stopped off in Chicago on his way home to Danville and disclaimed any intention of retiring from public life, as reported in New York dispatches. "When I get ready to step out of office I will say so, but up to date I am making no such announcement," declared the Speaker. "Also when my constituents get ready to have me retire they will no doubt say so. However, they have not given the word so far."

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 9.—With an even break on the two games played thus far there was another grand rush for seats at this afternoon's third game of the series between the Detroits and Athletics, contenders for first place in the American League, at Shibe Park.

No more interest could be displayed by the local fans were the championship to depend on the result.

Both managers were supremely confident before the game, although for once neither would say positively which of their twirlers he would use, each claiming that the final selection depended on the "over Sunday" show down.

Both had in mind a "repeater" on the Krause-Summers duel but then there was that final game to-morrow to be considered and neither was willing to take any chances at this most critical stage.

BABY KILLED BY CAVE-IN

Three women dug frantically at a caved-in sandpit in Liberty street, Quincy, this noon, to rescue thirteen-months-old Alfred aLmont, who was buried there. The work of the women was in vain. By the time they uncovered the little body life was extinct.

Two boys, names unknown, who were buried to their necks by the same cave-in, were rescued by two other companions.

Elford Lamont was the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Murdock Lamont of No. 62 Trafford street, Quincy. He got out of the house this noon and went over to the old sand pit where four boys were playing. When the cave-in came the two boys who were not caught did not miss the baby at first but devoted themselves to digging out the two boys who were partly buried.

When they missed the baby word was sent to the home of a Mrs. Wallace on Crawford street, who came with two other women armed with shovels and dug the lifeless baby out.

2 TORPEDO BOATS TO BE USED AS TARGETS

OLD POINT COMFORT, Va., Aug. 9.—Two torpedo boats will accompany the battleships of the North Atlantic fleet for their sea drill thirty miles off the Virginia capes, to be used as targets. These little craft, the O'Brien and the Nicholson, will be shot to pieces by the warships' great guns, probably the fore part of next week.

BABY GIRL STOLEN FROM COLONIAL EXPRESS

Father of Lost Child Claims It Is at Home With Mother, but Woman Told Police Little Girl Had Been Kidnapped by Stranger.

Bertie Inhoff, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Inhoff of Norwood, was kidnapped from her mother on the Colonial Express at the Back Bay station shortly after 9 o'clock to-day by an unknown man, under unusually sensational circumstances.

The young mother, with an infant in her arms, ran wildly from the train crying for the man to bring back her child. She fainted and had to be assisted to the waiting room of the station.

In the meantime the baggagemaster was making a thorough search of the train for the man and the child. The train was held seven minutes for this purpose. The man escaped with the girl.

Although Mrs. Inhoft said that she did not know the name of the man who ran off with the little girl she told the police that she believed she had seen him in Norwood in company with her husband. This is the man's description:

Tells Police Her Story.

Age, twenty-eight; height, five feet eight; weight, 185 pounds; smooth face; clothing, black coat, gray trousers, tan shoes.

When Mrs. Inhoff had sufficiently recovered to talk coherently, she told the police that her name was Fannie Inhoff, and that she had been living with her husband at the Norwood House, Norwood. She said her husband is employed in the Norwood Press printing establishment.

The couple had had trouble, she said, that might lead to a separation, and she was on her way to Philadelphia.

Mrs. Inhoff is a petite woman of about twenty-five. She wore a blue princess gown. She is extremely good looking. She reached the Back Bay station shortly before 9 o'clock. She carried in her arms an infant of eight months. Accompanying her was her little girl. She has blue eyes and golden hair and wore a white dress with white sandals.

The Colonial express rolled into the station at 9:04. The train was well filled. Mrs. Inhoff stepped out to the car and was about to ascend the steps of one of the coaches when a heavy-set man stepped up and said politely:

Man Seized Girl and Ran.

"Lady, the train is pretty crowded and you had better let me help you and your little girl find a seat."

"Thank you; you are very kind," replied Mrs. Inhoff, not suspecting anything wrong.

The man helped the woman and the little girl on the car and found them a seat. Half a minute passed and the bell rang. The train was about to start when the man said, addressing the little girl:

"I'll take you to the back of the car and show you the station."

The man started to the rear of the car and was out of the door with the girl before the startled woman fully realized what was happening. She leaped to her feet and ran for the rear end of the car. Shrieking that her child was being stolen, she almost fell to the platform.

"Catch him—catch him—he's got my child—he's got my child!" cried the distracted woman. She started after the man, but, handicapped as she was with the child in her arms, she could not make much headway. The man and the little girl disappeared.

Made Search of Train.

Great excitement prevailed in the station. Trainmen ran to the help of the woman. The baggageman took in the situation.

"May be the man got on the train again," some one suggested.

The baggageman started through the train, making a careful search. He was followed by a number of passengers who were eager to give him all the help they could. This took about seven minutes. When they finally came to the conclusion that the man was not on the train it sped out of the station, leaving the woman behind. She had fainted and was just returning to her senses.

Patrolman A. W. Ryan was called. He succeeded in getting some of the facts from the woman. She told about her trouble with her husband, and said that she believed that that was behind the kidnapping.

Mrs. Inhoff said that she would return to the Norwood House and see if she could get any trace of the child there. Ryan, who is attached to Station 5, began a search for the man and the little girl. The police are of the opinion that the man had a carriage waiting, or an automobile, and that he leaped into it and escaped.

Telegrams were sent ahead, however, to have a more thorough search of the train made, and that if the man attempted to leave the train with the little girl to have him taken into custody.

Inhoff Makes Denial.

Inhoff was seen to-day at the Norwood House in Norwood. He said that his wife and children were at home, but he declined to allow the reporter to see Mrs. Inhoff. Inhoff denied that his wife had tried to run away, and said it must have been some other woman who was acquainted with his family.

The description given the police of the kidnapper fitted Inhoff. He said that he had a friend who looked very much like him and he suggested that he might have been the man who took the child from the train. When the reporter persisted in being allowed to see his wife Inhoff said that his wife was very nervous and could not be seen.

PROSTRATIONS.

MRS. ANASTASIA GILMORE, No. 322 Cambridge street, overcome by the heat in City Hall. Relief Hospital.

JEREMIAH SULLIVAN, 60, Wakefield, overcome in Court square. Relief Station.

Relief from the heat wave which is sweeping over Boston was promised by the Weather Bureau to-day in the announcement that the city probably would get showers this afternoon or evening and that Tuesday would be fair and cooler.

Despite the fact that the sun had been playing hide and seek behind the clouds, the thermometer at 10 o'cock was just rising from 86, which was the mark for the same hour yesterday.

The humidity is at 62, eight per cent. below normal and affording some relief from the oppressiveness which has made thousands suffer the past forty-eight hours.

Boston is still the leader in the hat cities of the east, and the light westerly to southerly wind seems to bring nothing but hot air; Eastport, Me., always a cool spot, started in at 60 degrees at 8 o'clock to-day.

The mercury is rising, and while it is not expected to reach as high as it did yesterday, when the official maximum temperature was 94, the hottest August 8 since the inauguration of the weather bureau thirty-eight years ago, if it continues at its present rate it will exceed the 90 mark.

One person dead and seven more overcome is the record of the present hot wave in Boston and vicinity. Many more who were overcome were treated at their homes or by doctors.

Weather records for the past thirty-eight years show that a large majority of the hot spells in August come in the first half of the month.

The rain that is promised this section is expected to be of a local nature. The gulf States and the lake regions had their rain yesterday, and the northern part of New England expects the same to-day.

What rain falls in and around Boston will probably come in the form of a miniature tempest, developing from atmospheric conditions now centralizing over this section.

TYPOS BEGIN THEIR CONVENTION TO-DAY

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Aug. 9.—The fifty-fifth annual convention of the International Typographical Union opened here to-day. After an address by President Lynch the convention took up a large volume of business. There are three hundred delegates present. Expenditures during the year were $161,544.45. The union has a membership of 47,174.

"OFFICER ALMOST FORCED BEER SALE"

Alexander Andrulis of No. 20 North Margin street was fined $50 in the South Boston Court to-day for illegally selling two cases of beer to Policeman Jeremiah Moynihan of the Broadway station, who was in citizen's clothes. Andrulis told the Court he was driving his team through Bolton street when the policeman pushed the money into his hand.

TURKEY MASSES TROOPS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 9.—Turkey is massing troops on the Greek frontier in preparation of a war with Greece. All of the garrisons are being strengthened and trains of supplies and munitions are being shipped.

War with Greece will find Turkey fully prepared for both offensive and defensive. Ten thousand men were sent out to-day.

The Ambassadors of Great Britain, Russia, France and Italy are in session to-day at Thorapia, the ambassadorial Summer colony on the west coast of the Bosphorus, to solve the Cretan question and prevent Turkey and Greece from going to war. Greece will make a formal reply to Turkey to-day, the sense of which is that the Greek officers in Crete were stricken from the Grecian army list three years ago and that the entire question is in the hands of the four protecting powers—Great Britain, Italy, France and Russia. Greece reiterates assurances of Greek neutrality in Crete.

Meanwhile the agitation against Greece is spreading throughout Turkey. The Minister of War received information from Albania that a force of 5,000 volunteers has been formed there and is being held in readiness at Monastir to fight against Greece. The people are demanding war.

RECORD FLEET STARTS SAIL TO EASTWARD

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 9.—The New York Yacht Club cruise began auspiciously to-day when over 100 yachts, large and small, from luxurious steamers down to thirty-footers heaved anchor and started for Vineyard Haven on the first leg of the eastward cruise to Bar Harbor.

There were forty-five sailing craft in the big fleet and the rest were steam vessels and large power boats the exact number not being computed by the regatta committee. Steam yachts of all descriptions, like the big black Corsair, Electra, Privateer, Sultana, North Star, Narada, Haoull, Oneida and dozens of other familiar far and near rakish turbine flyers, slow moving auxiliaries, the old schooner Viking, which went to Australia; the Arawan, Seneca, Alcyone, Ariadne, the great schooner Atlantic, with her tall spars; the flagship Aloha, square rigged and picturesque, and then the slim, trim racers, Queen, Istalena, Aurora, Elmina, Vigilant, Avenger, Winsome, Weetamoe, all were participating in that great parade down Narragansett Bay to the sea.

The scene at the starting line off Brenton's Reef Light Vessel was a spectacular one, and there seemed more boats in the fleet than for several years past. The harbor start was signalled for 9:30 and the racing start an hour later. The run to Vineyard Haven is of thirty-seven nautical miles, and it was thought a favorable breeze would waft the leaders down there in four or five hours. The course led to Vineyard Sound Light Vessel and through Vineyard sound, leaving Lucas Shoal and the middle ground to starboard. It is seventeen and a half miles from Brenton's Reef Light Vessel to Vineyard Sound Light Vessel, on a course east-southeast then through the sound, course east by north fifteen and a half miles, then a short leg from West Chop Buoy to the harbor.

TIME LIMIT QUESTIONED.

The United States Civil Service Commission at Washington to-day notified the New England District Office, in the Federal Building, that the act of Congress, passed in June, restricting competitors in civil service examinations to those who have lived within the State where the examination is held one year, has been questioned by Constitutional authorities, and not to enforce it until further notice.

GREAT MYSTERY STORY STARTS TO-DAY

TAFT BANISHES CARES OF STATE; SEEKS REST ON GOLF LINKS TO-DAY

BEVERLY, Aug. 9.—President Taft played golf to-day, greeted the former Netherlands Minister and the newspaper men, received a cable from Acting Governor Forbes of the Philippines, cabled a reply and had an invitation to address the Rockingham County Republican Club of New Hampshire at its coming annual outing.

The President gave smart indication to-day that he is on a vacation. He hurried through his presidential work in a half-hour. By 10 o'clock he was speeding by automobile to the Essex County Club. There he played his first game of golf on the Essex County Club's links. With his son, Robert, W. J. Boardman and John Hays Hammond, the President made up a foursome. The President was the guest of Mr. Boardman, who was at the Myopia Country Club when the President played golf there Saturday. Mr. Boardman took advantage of the opportunity then to secure a promise from the President to try the Essex County links to-day.

President Taft returned to the summer White House at Burgess Point early in the afternoon. At 2:30 he received former Minister Van Swindersep from the Netherlands, who is returning to his own country.

At 3 o'clock the President received informally the newspaper men who constitute the press contingent at Beverly for the Summer.

It has been announced, also, that the President will give out an interview to the newspaper correspondents at 3 p. m. every Saturday.

Congratulated by Forbes.

The President, Washington, D. C.

The Philippine Commission wish to express their thanks and appreciation upon the success of the year of devoted effort which has resulted in the supreme achievement of August 5, which opens the markets of the United States to the Philippine people. Allow me to add my personal congratulations. The obstacles to Philippine prosperity are now removed and we, your representatives here, will try to do our part in turning the privileges conceded to the greatest advantage to the Filipinos.

FORBES,
Acting Attorney-General.

President Taft immediatly authorized the following cable in reply:

Forbes, Manila:

I thank you and the commission for your expressions of congratulation for the passage of the Philippine sections of the new tariff bill. It is a combination of our united efforts which, I am confident, will result in great benefit to the Philippines and to the people of the islands.

Invited to New Hampshire.

When Secretary Carpenter went up the stairway in the Board of Trade building at nine o'clock to-day he found waiting him a portly, dignified gentleman with sandy whiskers and a hopeful smile.

This gentleman was none other than Rufus N. Elwell, a Republican from New Hampshire, bearing an invitation for President Taft to address the Rockingham County Republican Club, of which Mr. Elwell is President, at the club's annual outing.

Mr. Elwell had a letter of introduction to President Taft from United States Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire. This related Mr. Elwell's loyal services to the Republican party in general and to President Taft in particular and besought the President to grant him an interview.

When Mr. Elwell learned from Secretary Carpenter that he was first in the field, since the President's arrival in Beverly, with an invitation for the President to address a gathering, the hopeful smile of Mr. Elwell settled into one of much complacency.

The Rockingham County Republican Club is one of the most influential political organizations in New Hampshire.

President Seeks Rest.

The club has shown much care in the wording of its invitation. It does not specify any date on which it would like to have the President address it. The date of the outing had not been set yet. It awaits the presidential pleasure. Thus the club and President Elwell figure that President Taft cannot plead a previous engagement. The fact, combined with the forehandedness of Mr. Elwell's early arrival, should count for considerable, in the shrewd estimation of the Rockingham County Republican Club.

If to-day's program is an indication of the President's routine during his vacation in Beverly it means that there is going to be a lot of play and the shortest possible time for business. The President will leave everything can possibly be attended to by Secretary Carpenter to that gentleman's care.

To-day Mr. Carpenter bore the brunt of the morning's work, which consisted principally in answering a part of the tremendous amount of mail that reached Beverly on the early morning train.

Two Wagon Loads of Mail.

It took two trips by the little express wagon that runs between the station and the postoffice to deliver the mail addressed to the President. Nearly all of the mail was marked personal, which meant that the writers hoped it would be opened by the President.

False hope. Mr. Carpenter can tell at a glance the President's private correspondence and all the other personals, even though the word is underlined three times, are opened in the executive offices.

A large part of the mail was forwarded from Washington, and there was considerable official matter regarding appointments, or documents requiring the President's signature, but the bundle which Mr. Carpenter made up to be delivered into the President's hands was very small.

There still remained a great many letters to be answered, and Mr. Carpenter kept the force of stenographers busy long after the President had gone to the golf links.

Cabinet Officers Coming.

President Taft's playtime is likely to be shortened considerably several days this week, for three cabinet officers are coming and several important matters will be discussed. This was learned when the President received the newspaper correspondents.

On Thursday Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel and E. Dana Durand, director of the census, will visit Beverly to discuss the appointment of enumerators for each State. An attempt was made to put this work under the civil service laws at the last session, but it failed, and the appointments will be made by the President. It is understood, however, that active partisans will not be appointed.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer will also be at the Summer White House some time this week.

Tunnel Bargain Basement

Entrance Direct from Tunnel Trains.

Here's How the Automatic Price Reduction Works —On July 26 we advertised a big sale of Waists—the quantities were very large and did not sell out within the 2 weeks before the first automatic price reduction. Consequently they were reduced 25%. At the end of the third week, there were still a few waists remaining from this purchase, and on Tuesday they will be on sale in the Tunnel Bargain Basement, automatically reduced 50%. There are waists originally priced at 3.65—Tuesday reduced to 1.82; 2.95 waists reduced to 1.47, and 1.95 waists reduced to 97c. It is the exception rather than the rule that lots reach the first automatic price reduction, but there are many lots just as extraordinary as the above, every day in the Tunnel Bargain Basement.

One of the styles in this sale—Tuesday, at 32c.

Among Many Other Lots For Tuesday—

Swiss Ribbed Union Suits At 32c

(50c and 59c values)

Swiss Ribbed White Lisle Thread and Cotton Union Suits; regular and extra sizes. Some have plain yokes and lace trimmed pants; others have lace yokes and lace trimmed pants.

"Hundreds of Lots Not Advertised"—such as, for example:
1.00 Lingerie and Dutch Collar Waists—69c.
89c Lingerie Waists, lace trimmed—50c.
Lace and embroidery trimmed Corset Covers—automatically reduced to 19c.
Gingham and Percale Wash Petticoats—45c.
Embroidery trimmed Drawer Combinations—48c.
Lace and embroidery trimmed Drawers—25c.

HIGH DUTY ON GLOVES MEANS NEW INDUSTRY

The new tariff will start a new industry in New England, and Captain Frank E. Webb of No. 77 Summer street is of the opinion that within two years there will be 50,000 persons employed in the new trade in this section and in New York. The new industry which the Payne-Aldrich bill is expected to start is the manufacture of cotton gloves. Owing to the cheapness of labor in Germany, Americans could not compete with Teutonic manufacturers without the aid of a tariff high enough to shut the imported goods out.

The Dingley tariff was no barrier at all, and in April last Germany secured a contract for 500,000 pairs of cotton gloves for the United States army. The Germans underbid the Americans 30 per cent. But now the tariff is high enough to give American glove makers a chance to compete.

Aided By Lodge.

When Captain Webb went to Washington to get a duty on cotton gloves high enough to start another infant industry, he encountered heavy opposition. He was strongly aided by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts and Congressman W. A. Calderhead of Kansas. Captain Webb and his congressional allies were given some valuable information by General Sherritts of the Board of General Appraisers and finally won their fight.

Heretofore the duty has simply been fifty per centum ad valorem. This gave the Germans all the chance to do all the cheap glove manufacturing. A mark can buy as much labor in Germany as a dollar will in the United States. A mark is a little more than twenty-three cents of our money.

Sees Boom Here.

The new glove duty clause in the tariff bill which President Taft has just signed reads:

Men's and boys' cotton gloves, knitted or woven, valued at not more than six dollars per dozen pairs, fifty cents per dozen pairs and forty per centum ad valorem; valued at more than six dollars per dozen pairs, fifty per centum ad valorem."

Captain Webb says about the present situation:

"The new tariff gives the American manufacturer control of the hosiery and glove industry up to 25 cents a pair. This will enable all the cotton gloves needed for the army, the National Guard and State militia, the Marine Corps and the Cadet Corps and all the undertakers of the country, to be supplied by makers of those goods in America."

LORILLARD AFTER TWO GATE HANGERS

NEWPORT, Aug. 9.—Louis L. Lorillard offers $100 reward for the arest of the parties who took the gate from his place on Ochre Point and hung it by wire across the road, so that it held up automobiles and carriages and injured a cab horse and frightened the occupants of several vehicles. Two men were seen running from in front of Mrs. Ogden Goelet's house when the gate was discovered in the roadway by one of Mr. Lorillard's servants. They were dressed in black clothes and wore yachting caps. The police are investigating.

WARNING NOTE TO BOSTONIANS OF BLUE EYES

A startling note of warning to blue-eyed, light-complexioned Bostonians is uttered by Dr. Charles E. Woodruff, surgeon and major in the United States Army, who has just completed a private tour of various State prisons and asylums. The jails and institutions, he says, are full of blondes who, unable to stand the struggle for existence in a climate to which they are unfitted, have fallen into poverty, disease and crime.

The great trouble is the sunshine. There is too much of it in America for the blonde, says Dr. Woodruff. It breaks down their nervous systems, renders them unstable, morally as well as physically, and makes them peculiarly liable to the ravages of consumption and other deadly ailments.

The Blonde in Prison.

In Clinton Prison, New York, for instance, says Dr. Woodruff, where the worst classes of criminals are confined, and where he expected to find the place full of modern "black-beards," he was astonished at the large number of blondes, some of them of very light type.

Of nearly 5,000 men whose average age was under twenty-one, admitted to the Elmira Reformatory, Dr. Woodruff found the types classified themselves as follows as to their hair: Blonde, 318; red, 90; sandy, 103; light brown, 1,203; dark brown, 1,149; black, 1,406.

The thirst for alcohol, Dr. Woodruff says, is merely the expression of a nervous weakness acquired under America's sunny skies, and resulting from excessive stimulation of light as one of a thousand causes.

Facts as to Boston.

Of ninety paupers in Boston institutions, Dr. Woodbury says, he found the same general trend in a city markedly more blonde than New York.

Thus, he says, unfavorable climatic factors are causing unfitness for survival in the race types in America too far misplaced from their ancestral climatic conditions. This process of elimination among human beings, he says, differs in no respect from that which goes on among irrigated plants and lower animals.

The native born, he says, furnish the great majority of the blue-eyed professional criminals.

EVANGELIST TORREY SAVES HOTEL MAN

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Cal., Aug. 9.—That Clarence E. Willey, manager of the Huntington Inn, is under arrest instead of in a hospital is due to the quickness and strength of Evangelist R. A. Torrey of Chicago. Willey was attacked in the lobby of the hotel by Daniel O'Connor, an enraged guest, who had armed himself with a heavy spade.

Dr. Torrey grappled with him and held him until assistance came. Willey was arrested on a warrant charging him with selling liquor to guests.

JOHN L.'S DRIVER IS HELD FOR SPEEDING

Jacob Stone, chauffeur for John L. Sullivan, has been summoned to the Quincy court to answer a charge of reckless driving and exceeding the speed limit. Stone will apear in court on Friday, and it is probable that the old prize fighter will be there too. John L. is living in Sharon just now. Patrolman Dwyer of the park police, pursuing on a motor bike, says that Stone was keeping John L. cool by driving along the Milton parkway at the rate of forty-eight miles an hour.

16 KILLED, 30 HURT; TRAIN HITS CAR

PARIS, Aug. 9.—Sixteen persons were killed and 30 injured when a trolley car was struck by a train at Long Jumou. The train was running at high speed and many of those who were killed were horribly mangled. The car was totally demolished. Several of the injured, it is believed, can not survive.

B. & A. MAKES NEW CUT IN FREIGHTS

The Boston & Albany Railroad, following the example of the Boston & Maine, has made another cut in its import freight rates westward from Boston to meet the reductions made by Southern roads who seek west-bound freights. The Boston & Albany's new schedule, filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, goes into effect September 8, five days later than the Boston & Maine's new schedule.

HELD IN $800 ON ROBBERY CHARGE

Harry Thompson, colored, of No. 8 Medford court, Boston, was held in $800 for the Grand Jury to-day by Judge Almy in the Cambridge District Court on the charge of robbing George McKenna, white, of Spencer street, Lynn. McKenna was lying in a vacant lot in Cambridge when the police found him.

BOY GAVE UP LIFE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Cornelius Bertrand, a boy of sixteen, gave his life in attempting to save his older companion, Charles Zimmerman, who was sinking in the Hudson. Zimmerman, who was a clerk, seventeen years old, clutched his would-be rescuer and both perished.

TIPS TO GIRLS SHOWING HOW TO ELUDE MAN

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—How to protect the "innocent working girl from the lure of man has appealed so strongly to Mrs. T. Vernette Morse that she is conducting a school in the McClurg Building.

Twelve graduates are putting into practice the theories of Mrs. Morse regarding the best way for a small paid girl to handle her opulent employer. They haven't been at it long, however, so it is too early to say whether the newly discovered branch of education is practical.

What Girls Are Learning.

In the meantime, here is what those twelve girls have been taught and what others are striving to learn:

How to treat a street car conductor.

How to treat an elevator starter.

How to act in the presence of a handsome floor walker.

How to cut an employer socially without losing one's job.

How to demean oneself toward a man so lacking of understanding as to advertise for a "bright girl."

Here are the answers of Mrs. Morse in the form in which she conveys them to her pupils.

"A girl is not called on to speak to a street car conductor at any time, unless it is to call his attention to a mistake in change or to ask him for a transfer. Either of these things can be done in a few words and in a ladylike, dignified way that will preclude any reply on the part of the conductor.

How to Treat Elevator Men.

"'Good morning' is all that a girl ever need say to an elevator starter. Only one other thing—I almost forgot to say that she also may say 'Good evening.' As for the elevator boy, the number of her floor is enough. Too many elevator boys assume the airs of the navigators of battleships.

"Our class in the freezing of handsome floorwalkers is our pride. The operation is delicate and not easily mastered. But by the raising or lowering of an eyelash a floorwalker may be frapped in his tracks, because he is afraid of being reported to his superiors.

"There should be no accepting or giving of invitations between a girl and her employer. Only this hard and fast rule will prevent episodes which too often have blighted lives in the Loop. (The Loop is the name of the business district of Chicago.) All personalities and social considerations should be eliminated. If a gentleman must call on a lady let him call at her home and not at her place of business."

COAL STEAMER GROUNDS ON SHOAL

PASQUE ISLAND, Aug. 9.—The four-masted schooner Maud B. Krum, Philadelphia for an Eastern port, with coal, grounded early to-day near what is known as the graveyard on this island.

The weather was very thick, with a strong southwest breeze blowing, and the crew of seven men had some difficulty in reaching shore.

Captain Erb sent to Vineyard Haven for a tug in the hope that the sea might go down and the vessel be floated with the rising tide later in the day.

At daylight the big waves were rolling in throug hthe mouth of Vineyard sound and dashing heavily against the stranded vessel.

ROOSEVELT IN WARLIKE NOMAD LAND

NAIVASHA, British East Africa, Aug. 9.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and his son, Kermit, accompanied by Edmund Heller, the zoologist of the Roosevelt expedition; E. J. Cunninghame, the British field naturalist, and Leslie A. Tarlton of Nairobi, left here at 8 a. m. to-day for Nyeri, a government station in the northwest of Kenia province.

Major Edgar A. Mearns and J. Alden Loring, the other members of the Roosevelt party, will leave here Wednesday for Nairobi, where they will prepare for an ascent of Mount Kenia, an extinct volcano to the north of Nairobi.

A second consignment of specimens selected by the expedition will be shipped to the United States on the steamship Admiral, which leaves Mombosa Aug. 16.

Nyeri is an important trade center of British East Africa. Indian bazars have been established and there are native markets and a small colony of coast traders. The neighborhood is the headquarters of the Masai tribe, warlike nomads, who inhabit the northwestern plain of Kenia province.

The snow-capped Mt. Kenia, which Major Mearns and Professor Loring will ascend, is an extinct volcano without any crater. It is called Kinaja-Kegnia, and is about 17,200 feet high. It was ascended for the first time by Mackinder in 1899. The mountain supports numerous glaciers and its timber line is at 10,300 feet.

PHYSICIANS WANT TANSAN DUTY FREE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Prominent physicians from Philadelphia and all the large cities of the country are preparing at the beginning of the next session of Congress to urge that the famous Japanese healing water known as Tansan be put on the free list. This water is in the Payne tariff law subject to a tariff as high as other mineral waters which might compete with American waters. A petition signed by 150 physicians, and presented to Senator Warren, prays that, for philanthropic and humanitarian reasons, the healing water, as an article that competes with no American equivalent, be admitted free of duty.

CUTS HIS THROAT IN A NIGHTMARE

SUNCOOK, N.H., Aug. 9.—Rock Vigeau t, a resident of Amesbury, Mass., employed in the China Mills weave room here, had a bad attack of nightmare and grabbed a razor, thinking he was going to hit some one, and cut a gash from the back of his neck to within a quarter of an inch of the jugular vein. Vigeault is 48 years old.

MAURETANIA AGAIN BREAKS A RECORD

QUEENSTOWN, Aug. 9. — The liner Mauretania arrived to-day, beating her own record between New York and Queenstown by one minute. The liner arrived at 10:10 a. m., having made the passage in four days seventeen hours and twenty minutes. Her daily speed was 25.80 knots.

REVOLT AGAIN BREAKS OUT IN BARCELON

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Revolt has ag broken out in Barcelona, three men hav been killed and seven wounded, and inc diaries have fired many buildings, acco ing to dispatches received here to-day fr the Spanish frontier. As these dispatc are made up from censored news, it feared here than another terrific battle going on.

These dispatches say that General S tiago has issued a proclamation to-day claring that any one seen disturbing peace will be shot on sight.

The Spanish Government is sending mo troops into Catalonia, and it is believed th the general strike will be renewed. Skir ishing is going on between the mob a troops, but the government is again ex cising vigil and censorship to prevent t exact conditions from becoming genera known. The dead and wounded are rioters. In dispersing the mobs the so diers fired upon them.

This may put an end to the policy clemency which Spain has been enforcin To placate the people an imperial comma was given that the ring leaders of the Ba celona outbreak be dealt with lenient Consequently many were imprisoned inste of being put to death.

The renewal of hostilities created a fee ing of intense alarm in Madrid, accordi to the dispatches. The government, feeli that the rebellion had been effectually su dued, had begun taking troops away fro Catalonia for Moroccan campaign. Gener Santiago had protested, but in vain.

The Republicans have been quietly a tempting to bring about a new revolt. L roux, the deposed deputy, to whom th radicals in Spain look as their leader, wa appealed to. A reply was anxiously awaite from Leroux, and it is believed now that h has given his word to guide the destinies a new rebellion.

SPIRIT MEDIUM IS OVERCOME

Mrs. May Pepper Vanderbilt, the spiritualist and medium, is recuperating with friends in Salem to-day, after being prostrated by the heat at the conclusion of a seance at Camp Progress, Mowerland Park, Upper Swampscott. Mrs. Pepper had given one lecture and seance to 1,500 people and began a second, delivered several messages purporting to come from friends in the Spirit World when she suddenly came abruptly out of the trance, was normally conscious for a moment, and succumbed to heat prostration.

She was revived with cold water and fans and escorted back to Salem, where she and her husband, Edward Vanderbilt, the New York lumber millionaire, are guests of friends. Mrs. Vanderbilt's addresses related to general subject of "The Necessity of Human Love."

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

Dr. Norman M. Geer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "During the last twelve years I have frequently recommended your Castoria as one of the best preparations of the kind, being safe in the hands of parents and very effective in relieving children's disorders, while the ease with which such a pleasant preparation can be administered is a great advantage."

$157,400 SAVED TO EX-MAYOR MATTHEWS IN TAX ABATEMENTS

A sensation was caused in municipal circles to-day, when it became known that Nathan Matthews, former Mayor of the city, former head of the Finance Commission and recently tagged with a Harvard degree for his efforts to uplift Boston, had through his personal influence secured a cut of $157,400 in the valuation of his taxable property two years ago.

This coming after the revelation made by Councilman Frank Goodwin that this "genuine reformer" had enjoyed immunity from paying taxes on the so-called "Matthews Park," back of Hotel Oxford, valued at more than $20,000, for twenty-three years, has stirred taxpayers in an unusual manner.

A shake-up in the assessing department at City Hall is looked for.

Councilman Goodwin declares that this large reduction on the eighty estates owned by Matthews "had to be made up in some way, and the small property owned in the suburban districts may see some connection between these statements and recent increases on his little property."

An AMERICAN reporter met Mr. Matthews just as he was entering his offices in the Tremont building to-day.

"Have you anything to say in regard to Mr. Goodwin's latest statement about reductions in taxes on your property?" Mr. Matthews was asked.

"I can't say anything about it just now," replied Mr. Matthews. "I may say something in regard to the matter later, but at present I am very busy. I have only finished reading what Mr. Goodwin has to say."

Councilman Goodwin, when seen to-day in reference to the new facts which he has unearthed about the big cut in the Matthews property assessment, said:

"I have given the public the facts. They speak for themselves. The assessors declare that the abatements were made because of depreciation in the value of the property. It might be of interest to the public to ascertain whether there was any reduction, or any increase, in rent following the abatements."

One of the staunchest supporters of Matthews in the contention between him and Goodwin is Charles E. Folsom, secretary of the assessing department, who declares that Matthews does not owe the city a cent for taxes, and that the reductions were justifiable. Mr. Folsom lives at No. 30 Esmond street, Dorchester. He has been in the assessing department just eleven years and gets $4,200 a year.

Mr. Folsom has jurisdiction of the assessing of property in certain wards. All of the Matthews abatements were on property in Mr. Folsom's territory.

This is what Mr. Folsom had to say today:

"This seems to be a controversy between Mr. Goodwin and Mr. Matthews. I do not see what the assessing department has to with it. I will say that the abatements on the Matthews property were made after the property had been inspected and when we became convinced that it had been overassessed.

"Matthews got no more consideration than would any other man who is overassessed. It may seem a large abatement, $157,000, but you must remember that this reduction was made on property valued at more than $1,000,000."

Shake-up Is Predicted.

The Matthews tax question was the sole topic of discussion to-day at City Hall. It is believed that Mayor Hibbard will look into the matter, and it was freely predicted that there would be a big shake-up in the assessing department.

Councilman Goodwin ironically quotes, in his statement regarding these abatements, the praise showered on Mr. Matthews by Harvard University last June when Harvard conferred on the Ex-Mayor the degree of Doctor of Laws for his good government activities.

The summary of abatements on Matthews property, shown in Councilman Goodwin's statement, follows:

Street.	Valuations, 1904.	Land and buildings, 1907.	Abatements.
Follen	$95,000	$88,000	$7,000
Falmouth	57,000	45,100	11,900
Belvidere	141,000	125,900	15,100
St. Botolph	142,000	135,500	6,500
Oxford terrace	449,200	395,600	53,600
Claremont park	31,200	24,600	6,600
Greenwich park	10,400	10,000	400
Dundee	221,600	167,300	54,300
Totals	$1,147,400	$990,000	$157,400

ILLUSTRATES IN COURT HOW WOMEN FIGHT

Blanche C. Angevine, a retired actress who once played with Sothern, and her husband, Louis, a scene painter now engaged in painting scenery for the Boston Opera House, appeared in the Dedham court to-day, she being charged with assaulting her neighbor, Mrs. George M. Mason of Norwood, by setting a bull dog upon her, and he with keeping an unlicensed dog. Mrs. Angevine pleaded not guilty, and her husband admitted that he had not licensed the dog. The case was put over for a week, at which time Judge Frederick Hutchinson will impose sentences.

Mrs. Angevine, at the court's request, gave an exhibition of how women fight. She clawed the air with lightning like speed for a minute, much to the amusement of the spectators. Judge Hutchinson wanted to know what she meant when she said that "Mrs. Mason went right at me."

Mrs. Mason lives at No. 842 Washington street. Mrs. Angevine says that Mrs. Mason's two girls called her names and threw stones. She had complained to Mrs. Mason, and it was during a call that the dispute started.

Mrs. Mason told the court that she was chased through the house, Mrs. Angevine holding by a leash a dog which was used in the first production of "The Lion and the Mouse." Mrs. Mason says she was bitten and her dress was torn by the animal. Then she fainted, and Dr. Arthur Hartwell treated her.

Mrs. Angevine, in addressing the court, said:

"I was taking the dog on a leash to my husband, who was in the fields. While crossing the street the two daughters of Mrs. Mason and seven or eight boys were coming along. The girls called out names at me, and one of them threw a stone, which hit my shoulder.

"Then I went to Mrs. Mason and complained of what her children had done. When I spoke to her she went at me. Mrs. Mason insulted me and slapped my face. My dog became scared and jumped up. I said to her: 'If you insult me again I'll set the dog on you.'"

BERGER TO QUIT N. Y. FOR FRISCO

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Sam Berger, Jeffries's manager, said to-day that if he did not hear from Jack Johnson by the end of this week he would go to California. Johnson, according to Berger, has not covered Jeff's $5,000 forfeit, which would seem to indicate that he has no idea of meeting the boilermaker in the ring at any time.

Johnson declares that it will be time enough to sign articles for a mill with Jeff after he has defeated Ketchel in California in October.

It has been the opinion of many sporting men that the tiresome Jeff-Johnson wrangle depends wholly upon the result of the negro's battle with the Michigan Lion.

BOSTON MAN FINED AT NEWBURYPORT

NEWBURYPORT, Aug. 9.—Seventeen automobilists were summoned into court to-day in a police campaign against overspeeders. Benjamin E. Edwards and K. W. Faunce of Boston were each fined $10. Urbain Burchard of the same place did not appear, and James M. Dolan, also of Boston, had his case continued to August 16.

TAKE LID OFF NARRAGANSET, WOMAN'S PLEA

NARRAGANSETT PIER, Aug. 9.—Does this summer resort need more saloons and regulated gambling to maintain its hot weather popularity?

Mrs. John Henry Hanan, wife of a New York millionaire and one of the leaders of society here, says this is just what the Pier needs, and she is backed enthusiastically by a number of influential cottagers.

A second faction, headed by William M. Ivins of New York, is horror-struck at the gambling here. He says he will hire fifty men, if necessary, to abolish what he calls the "Gilded Palace of Sin," a Beach street gambling house. Meanwhile, the war between the factions is on.

Mrs. Hanan's Views.

Mrs. Hanan in a declaration in which she calls Newport the front door to society and the Pier its back door, says:

"As far as gambling is concerned, it's something that's got to exist. My idea of this question is that it ought to be regulated. I believe this form of amusement is the rich man's pastime, and it's nobody's business how he spends his money as long as it doesn't injure anybody else. But I'm emphatically opposed to the opening of these gambling places to young boys and men who cannot afford to lose a dollar.

"I am one of those who believe that two saloons are not enough for this town. There should be one for each class of people——waiters, colored men, middle class, society, etc. I believe in being liberal minded about these things, and I think the sooner these meddler stop stirring things up the better the Pier will be."

What Mr. Ivins Thinks.

Mr. Ivins, who has spent his summers here for the last twenty-five years, expressed his fears for the place in this way:

"Gambling is carried on here, in spite of the stories to the contrary. Social parasites are sapping up the wealth of the community. Rich men are keeping away from the Pier the last three or four years for the reason that they are afraid that their morals will be corrupted by the evils that go on here with the connivance of the authorities. Newporters come over here to gamble because they don't want the contamination in their own midst."

32,940 ON PAYROLLS IN THE CANAL ZONE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The report of the Chief Quartermaster for June shows the number of Isthmian Canal Commission employes actually at work on June 23 on the Isthmus of Panama was 26,468, of whom 4,166 were "gold employes" and the remainder were on the "silver" or labor roll. The Panama Railroad force was 5,704 and the Panama Railroad commissary force 768. Thus the total number of persons at work on the canal and railroad on June 23 was 32,940.

SAIL TO INSPECT WATERWAYS ABROAD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Seven of the members of the National Waterways Commission, a commission authorized by Congress to investigate the waterways of Europe and Canada, as well as those of the United States, for the purpose of making recommendations for the improvement of the rivers, harbors and canals of our own country, will sail from New York Tuesday on a ten weeks' investigation and examination of the waterways of Europe.

WRIGHT TO TEACH SIGNAL MEN TO FLY

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 9.—Wilbur Wright is expected to arrive here about the end of the week, when he will make plans for instructing the signal officers in the handling of the aeroplane which the government acquired. The work probably will be undertaken early next week. The lease of the grounds at College Park, Md., has been arranged. Orville Wright sails from New York this week for Germany, where he will make a number of experimental flights.

TOO MANY FOREST FIRES FOR WILSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—"We have got after the railroads; we have got to get after the campers; Congress has got to pass more laws for the prevention of forest fires and we have got to enforce them good and hard," said Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson to-day, who is emphatic in his declaration that there are still too many fires devastating the forests of the country and that a much more energetic policy even than has been pursued by the government for several years past must be adopted.

Natives in Stock Plunge On E. H. Harriman's Tip

BERLIN—Though E. H. Harriman is understood to have been ordered a strict abstinence from work during the latter part of the financier's vacation he has been doing a good deal of business. Before he left Bad Gastein Mr. Harriman had conferences with Otto H. Kahn, James D. Ryan and Willard D. Straight, who went quietly from Berlin to see him. One result of Mr. Harriman's visit to Bad Gastein is that all the natives of that resort are counting on making fortunes in Union Pacific. A pool has been formed and 3,000 shares of that stock have been purchased in behalf of the Bad Gasteiners, who are quoting Mr. Harriman as having told one of them who held some Union Pacific stock:

"You'd better keep it. It's all right. You will be surprised at what is going to happen."

Croker Entertains Americans.

DUBLIN—Richard Croker and his niece, Mrs. Stella Bowman, will entertain a large house party at Glencairn for the great Dublin horse show and the Phoenix Park races. His guests will include Richard Croker, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Martin Littleton (possibly), Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Cammann, Jr., Judge Gildersleeve, Theodore Myers, ex-Comptroller J. Sergeant Cram and other Tammanyites returning from Carlsbad. All rumors which are being spread concerning Croker's determination to sever his connection with the Irish turf are incorrect.

To Honor Hugo's Memory.

PARIS—The dedication of a new statue of Victor Hugo by Rodin, on September 26, the fiftieth anniversary of the publication of the Legende des Siecles (Story of the Centuries), is to be made the occasion of a week's literary celebration to the memory of the great novelist and poet. There will be a ceremony at the Pantheon, a revival at the Comedie Francais of "Le Roi S'amuse," with Silvain in the role of Triboulet, and a fete in front of Notre Dame, with a big procession of vagabonds carrying colored torches.

Dr. Hill in a London Pulpit.

LONDON—Rev. John Wesley Hill, pastor of the Metropolitan Temple, New York city, began his pulpit ministrations in the Marylebone Presbyterian Church of London yesterday. His introductory remarks touched on the intimate relationship between Great Britain and the United States. He declared it to be the relation existing between mother and child, and pleaded earnestly for a strengthening of the bonds.

English Head of Turkey's Bank.

Greek Prince Seeks the Hand of Margaretta Drexel, Heiress

Miss Margaretta Drexel.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—The gossips are absolutely determined to marry off Miss Margaretta Drexel to a prince of Greece.

Soon after Mrs. Anthony Drexel gave her "small dance," which eventually became a ball, attended by more than six hundred guests, it was reported that pretty Miss Margaretta was engaged to Prince Christopher of Greece, the younger son of the Greek King, and a nephew of Queen Alexandra.

This rumor arose from the fact that Mrs. Drexel had planned a "young people's table" at supper. At this table Miss Anita Stewart, Miss Drexel's cousin, sat next to her fiance, Prince Miguel of Braganza, who kept everybody laughing with his somewhat antediluvian jokes in broken English, and Miss Drexel herself sat next to Prince Christopher of Greece, to whom she made herself very agreeable, as usual, but whom she found a little difficult to entertain.

It is the prince's first visit to England, and, being very shy, he was rather dazed at the splendor of the Drexel entertainment.

Mrs. Anthony Drexel, although often talked of as a very ambitious woman, has no idea of forcing her daughter into any alliance, however great, which the girl does not approve of, and Miss Drexel herself is a young lady of remarkable strength of character.

DOCTOR SAYS O'MEARA IGNORES COMPLAINT AGAINST POLICEMAN

Boston is ruled by a police autocrat.

The requirement of Commissioner O'Meara that all police trials must be secret has worked injustice on all classes of citizens.

These two facts have been thoroughly proved by the BOSTON AMERICAN during the week just ended.

Out of a hundred letters on this line one has been selected which is typical, and shows what infamous treatment may be accorded to citizens, regardless of their professional, social or other standing in the community. It is written by a practicing physician of unquestioned standing, one who pays into the city treasury the considerable sum of $1,800 a year in taxes and who stands ready to give his name and prove every statement he makes if Commissioner O'Meara or Superintendent Pierce takes issue with him.

Seized by a Policeman.

He has presented his case to the BOSTON AMERICAN in person. His letter follows:

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

It was my unfortunate experience to come in contact, last Fall, with a policeman representing Station 5, which resulted in my bringing charges against him.

While making professional calls in my automobile, I was struck by stones and other missiles thrown by boys at the corner of Harrison avenue and Oneida street, South End, and my hand cut. As this was a common practice, a fact the commissioner himself admitted, in the neighborhood, I jumped out of the machine and seized a little fellow that I had seen throw a stone. Before I could call a policeman or say a word, I was suddenly grabbed by an officer, who must have seen the stone throwing, and, with the assistance of a fellow officer (and, by the way, no assistance was necessary, as I made absolutely no resistance), I was dragged, not escorted, to a patrol box, and arrested, as he said, for an assault on the boy.

I begged and pleaded that my number of the auto be taken, and that I could, in that way, be summoned to court, or that he at least take me to the station house in my machine and spare me the humiliation and disgrace of being taken in the patrol wagon.

All this was laughed at, and even my request that he take his hand off my shoulder at the patrol box only caused him to take a firmer hold.

In court, the next morning, I was discharged by Judge Ely, and I then had my counsel, Charles H. Innes, draw up charges against the officer, and submitted them to Commissioner O'Meara.

Six Witnesses Subatantiate It.

My complaint as to the officer's treatment of me, which was rough, domineering and brutal, was substantiated by at least six witnesses.

From a number of people residing on the beat patrolled by this officer I received the information that it was a common habit of his to indulge in alcohol while on duty, as well as to extort money from push-cart peddlers and storekeepers who were allowed to evade the law for small considerations.

I submitted all this to Mr. O'Meara and while my charges referring to the officer's habit of drinking were substantiated by the very people in whose house the officer drank, and by several witnesses to the occasions when the officer got his beer and brandy, yet the charges were dismissed, and I was informed that the commissioner had ruled that he felt that my charges were all actuated by malice and prejudice.

While I am not signing my name, as I do not solicit any notoriety, yet Charles H. Innes was my counsel in this matter and I will give my name if there be any denial from police headquarters.

(Signed) A BOSTON PHYSICIAN.

The AMERICAN will be pleased to give Commissioner O'Meara's version of the writer's charges, and suggests to the acting commissioner that the allegations made are worthy of the commissioner's attention. It might not be a waste of time for Superintendent Pierce to forward a copy of the AMERICAN to Commissioner O'Meara in his vacation retreat.

Calls for the Papers.

Superintendent Pierce was asked what he had to say to the very serious charge made in Saturday's AMERICAN by A. T. Knapp, the proprietor of Boston's Eden Musee, that gross negligence had been shown by the Boston police in their failure to apprehend one of Mr. Knapp's former employes who had robbed him of $400. Mr. Pierce was very gracious to the reporter and expressed his regret that the BOSTON AMERICAN had felt called upon to criticise the police system.

"I cannot understand why you are doing it," he said. "I really don't think we deserve it."

Then he had Chief Watts bring in all the papers in the Knapp case. Chief Watts said that the Boston police had done everything that they could think of to locate the absconder and had sent out a description of the man to all New England points.

When asked what had been done relative to Mr. Knapp's tip that the man might be found in a certain place in New York, Chief Watts displayed letters from Inspector McCafferty, head of the New York detective bureau, to prove that the fugitive's haunts had been searched in that city.

It would seem to be a straight issue of fact between Mr. Knapp and the Boston police as to the work of the latter in following up Mr. Knapp's tip.

"Of course, we can't send our inspectors all over the United States on a $362 larceny," was Chief Watts' comment—which may or may not illuminate the situation.

ICE HAMPERS WORK; FISHERIES A FAILURE

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Aug. 9.—Advices from Labrador, through the fisheries cruiser Fiano, which has arrived here, report the failure of the fisheries off that coast, owing to the ice blockade. Unless this barrier is removed soon a serious situation to 25,000 men and their families is inevitable. These men comprise the crews of the 1,500 vessels which usually are engaged in the Labrador fisheries.

As Millions Know, There Is No Other Milk Like This

For your own sake, please learn the difference between Van Camp's Milk and all others. For you save not a penny by taking vastly inferior milk.

You get a full pint of Van Camp's for 10 cents—with two-thirds the water evaporated.

You get a milk which is 28 per cent solids—8 per cent butter fat. And you get pure Holstein milk.

You don't get a thin milk, with too much water left in. And you don't get a milk which is cheapened with sugar, as you do in condensed milk.

When others offer an equal milk, they are welcome to say, "It is as good as Van Camp's."

But, until they do, we shall continue to warn you against the inferior brands.

No Tubercular Cows

The chief danger in raw milk lies in tubercular germs. Millions of infected cows, milked every day, are spreading consumption at a terrible rate.

That is why every authority advises sterilized milk.

Van Camp's milk is sterilized, but that isn't all. Our cows are inspected, so we know none is infected.

Our dairies are sanitary in the extreme. Our evaporating plants are built without wood. We employ every modern precaution.

The result is a milk which is utterly sterile. A milk that is safe, without a germ of any kind in it.

Rich Holstein Milk

We buy none but Holstein cows—the world's finest breed, famed for their splendid vitality.

The milk from such cows is immeasurably better for children than the milk of mongrel cows.

This milk, fresh from the cows, is placed in a vacuum. And a moderate heat, because of the vacuum, throws off the water in steam.

Thus we take out two-thirds of the water, and the milk that results is as thick as thick cream. It contains 28 per cent total solids, and 8 per cent butter fat.

We use no sugar, no starch, no preservative. Van Camp's is simply rich Holstein milk, reduced for convenience in shipping.

Six Cents Per Quart

The cost of Van Camp's, when you replace the water which we evaporate, is about six cents per quart.

The 10-cent can contains a full pint of milk reduced to the minimum. And grocers give discounts on cases.

So Van Camp's is cheaper than raw milk, because your milkman's daily delivery costs more than the milk itself.

And you have no waste when you use Van Camp's. You never have milk left over. You open a can when you want it, and it keeps till you use it up.

A Cow in the Kitchen

Van Camp's means a cow in the kitchen. Rich milk or cream for every purpose—all you want and all the time.

Add one part water for coffee or cereals. It is then like the richest cream. For cooking or drinking, reduce as you like.

Van Camp's gives to milk dishes twice the richness and flavor that you get from raw milk. For this is whole milk, with all the butter fat, all the solids in it.

In milkman's milk, the butter fat rises and the solids fall. You don't get the whole milk from any part of the can. Then you let it stand and it separates more. So the milk used for cooking is rarely more than a half-milk.

You'll be amazed at the flavor which Van Camp's gives to milk dishes. Not the slight almond flavor, due to sterilization, apparent when Van Camp's is drunk cold. You get that same flavor from milkman's milk when you heat it. The delicious flavor that Van Camp's gives to milk dishes is due to the richness, the wholeness of the milk.

Don't be Misled

If you want Holstein milk, reduced to the minimum, you will always insist on Van Camp's.

Others may claim that common milk, only partly reduced, is just as good as Van Camp's. But it isn't.

And don't think that condensed milk, which is nearly half sugar, is anything like Van Camp's. Van Camp's contains no sugar—no addition whatever.

Sugar was used to preserve milk before the days of sterilization. It is entirely unnecessary now. If you want sugar, you can buy it for half what it costs in a can of milk.

And condensed milk, because of the sugar, is unfit for cooking. You can't use it as you can Van Camp's. So, please let no one mislead you.

The 16-oz. can of Van Camp's sells for 10 cents; the 6-oz. can 5 cents. So you get one-third more for your money in buying the larger cans. Grocers give discounts on cases. The milk is produced at our dairies, located in six states.

BEGIN TO-DAY THIS GREAT MYSTERY STORY BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE YELLOW ROOM"

"The Perfume of the Lady in Black"

By GASTON LEROUX.

Copyright, 1909, by Brentano's.

CHAPTER I.

Which Begins Where Most Romances End.

THE marriage of M. Robert Darzac and Mlle. Mathilde Stangerson took place in Paris, at the Church of St. Nicolas de Chardonnet, on April 6, 1895, everything connected with the occasion being conducted in the quietest fashion possible.

A little more than two years had rolled by since the events which I have recorded in a previous volume—events so sensational that it is not speaking too strongly to say that an even longer lapse of time would not have sufficed to blot out the memory of the famous "Mystery of the Yellow Room."

There was no doubt in the minds of those concerned that, if the arrangements for the wedding had not been made almost secretly, the little church would have been thronged and surrounded by a curious crowd, eager to gaze upon the principal personages of the drama which had aroused an interest world-wide and the circumstances of which were still present in the minds of the sensation-loving public.

But in this isolated little corner of the city, in this almost unknown parish, it was easy enough to maintain the utmost privacy. Only a few friends of M. Darzac and Professor Stangerson, on whose discretion they felt assured that they might rely, had been invited. I had the honor to be one of the number.

I reached the church early, and, naturally, my first thought was to look for Joseph Rouletabille. I was somewhat surprised at not seeing him, but, having no doubt that he would arrive shortly, I entered the pew already occupied by M. Henri-Robert and M. Andre Hesse, who, in the quiet shades of the little chapel, exchanged in undertones reminiscences of the strange affair at Versailles which the approaching ceremony brought to their memories. I listened without paying much attention to what they were saying, glancing from time to time carelessly around me.

A Dreary Wedding Scene

A dreary place enough is the Church of St. Nicolas du Chardonnet. With its cracked walls, the lizards running from every corner and dirt—not the beautiful dust of ages, but the common, ill-smelling, germ-laden dust of to-day—everywhere, this church, so dark and forbidding on the outside, is equally dismal within. The sky, which seems rather to be withdrawn from than above the edifice, sheds a miserly light which seems to find the greatest difficulty in penetrating through the dusty panes of unstained glass.

Have you read Renan's 'Memories of Childhood and Youth?" Push open the dor of St. Nicolas du Chardonnet and you will understand how the author of the "Life of Jesus" longed to die, when as a lad he was a pupil in the little seminary of the Abbe Duplanloup, close by, and could only leave the school to come to pray in this church. And it was in this funereal darkness, in a scene which seemed to have been painted only for mourning and for all the rites consecrated to sorrow, that the marriage of Robert Darzac and Mathilde Stangerson was to be solemnized. I could not cast aside the feeling of foreboding that came over me in these dreary surroundings.

Beside me, M. Henri-Robert and M. Andre Hesse continued to chat, and my wandering attention was arrested by a remark made by the former:

"I never felt quite easy about Robert and Mathilde," he said—"not even after the happy termination of the affair at Versailles—until I knew that the information of the death of Frederic Larsan had been officially confirmed. That man was a pitiless enemy."

It will be remembered, perhaps, by readers of "The Mystery of the Yellow Room," that a few months after the acquittal of the Professor in Sorbonne, there occurred the terrible catastrophe of La Dordogne, a transatlantic steamer, running between Havre and New York. In the broiling heat of a Summer night, upon the coast of the new world, La Dordogne had caught fire from an overheated boiler. Before help could reach her, the steamer was utterly destroyed. Scarcely thirty passengers were able to leap into the lifeboats, and these were picked up the next day by a merchant vessel, which conveyed them to the nearest port. For days thereafter, the ocean cast up on the beach hundreds of corpses. And among these, they found Larsan.

The papers which were found carefully hidden in the clothing worn by the dead man proved beyond a doubt his identity. Mathilde Stangerson was at last delivered from this monster of a husband to whom, through the facility of the American laws, she had given her hand in secret, in the unthinking ardor of girlish romance.

The Shadow of Larsan.

This wretch, whose real name, according to court records, was Ballmeyer, and who had married her under the name of Jean Roussel, could no longer rise like a dark shadow between Mathilde and the man whom she had loved so long and so well without daring to become his bride.

In "The Mystery of the Yellow Room" I have related all the details of this remarkable affair, one of the strangest which has ever been known in the annals of the Court of Assizes, and which, without doubt, would have had a most tragic denouement, had it not been for the extraordinary part played by a boy reporter, scarcely eighteen years old, Joseph Rouletabille, who was the only one to discover that Frederic Larsan, the celebrated secret service agent, was none other than Ballmeyer himself.

The accidental—one might almost say "providential"—death of this villain, had seemed to assure a happy termination to the extraordinary story, and it must be confessed that it was undoubtedly one of the chief factors in the rapid recovery of Mathilde Stangerson, whose reason had been almost overturned by the mysterious horrors at the Glandier.

"You see, my dear fellow," said M. Henri-Robert to M. Andre Hesse, whose eyes were roving restlessly about the church, "you see, in this world, one can always find the bright side. See how beautifully everything has turned out—even the troubles of Mlle. Stangerson. But why are you constantly looking about you? What are you looking for? Do you expect any one?"

"Yes," replied M. Hesse. "I expect Frederic Larsan."

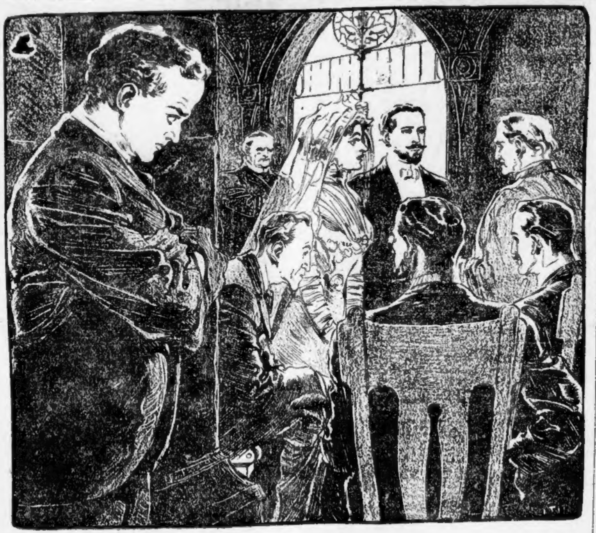
M. Henri-Robert laughed—a decorous little laugh, in deference to the sanctity of the surroundings. But I felt no inclination to join in his mirth. I was a hundred leagues from foreseeing the terrible experience which was even then approaching us; but when I recall that moment and seek to blot out of my mind all that has happened since—all those events which I intend to relate in the course of this narrative, letting the circumstances come before the reader as they came before us during their development—I recollect once more the curious unrest which thrilled me at the mention of Larsan's name.

"What's the matter, Sinclair?" whispered M. Henri-Robert, who must have noticed something odd in my expression. "You know that Hesse was only joking."

"I don't know anything about it," I answered. And I looked attentively around me, as M. Andre Hesse had done. And, indeed, we had believed Larsan dead so often when he was known as Ballmeyer, that it seemed quite possible that he might once more be brought to life in the guise of Larsan.

Rouletabille Is Pale

"Here comes Rouletabille," remarked M. Henri-Robert. "I'll wager that he isn't worrying about anything."



Rouletabille seemed to fear that all was not right. He withdrew to the shadow of a pillar and with eager eyes watched the ceremony.

"But how pale he is!" exclaimed M. Andre Hesse in an undertone.

The young reporter joined us and pressed our hands in an absent-minded manner.

"Good morning, Sinclair. Good morning, gentlemen. I am not late, I hope?"

It seemed to me that his voice trembled. He left our pew immediately and withdrew to a dark corner, where I beheld him kneel down like a child. He hid his face, which was indeed very pale, in his hands, and prayed. I had never guessed that Rouletabille was of a religious turn of mind and his fervent devotion astonished me.

When he raised his head his eyes were filled with tears. He did not even try to hide them. He paid no attention to anything or any one around him. He was lost completely in his prayers, and, one might imagine, in his grief.

But what could be the occasion of his sorrow? Was he not happy at the prospect of the union so ardently desired by every one? Had not the good fortune of Mathilde Stangerson and Robert Darzac been in a great measure brought about by his efforts? After all, it was perhaps from joy, that the lad wept. He rose from his knees and was hidden behind a pillar. I made no endeavor to join him, for I could see that he was anxious to be alone.

And the next moment Mathilde Stangerson made her entrance into the church upon the arm of her father, Robert Darzac walking behind them.

Ah, the drama of the Glandier had been a sorrowful one for these three! But, strange as it may seem, Mathilde Stangerson appeared only the more beautiful for all that she had passed through. True, she was no longer the beautiful statue, the living marble, the ancient goddess, the cold Pagan divinity, who at the official functions at which her father's position had forced her to appear, had excited a flutter of admiration whenever she was seen.

It seemed, on the contrary, that fate, in making her expiate for so many long years an imprudence committed in early youth, had cast her into the depths of madness and despair, only to tear away the mask of stone, which hid from sight the tender, delicate spirit.

And it was this spirit which shone forth on her wedding day, in the sweetest and most charming smile, playing on her curved lips, hiding in her eyes, filled with pensive happiness, and leaving its impress on her forehead, polished like ivory, where one might read the love of all that was beautiful and all that was good.

As to her gown, I must acknowledge that I remember nothing at all about it, and am unable even to say of what color it was. But what I do remember is the strange expression which came over her visage when she looked through the rows of faces in the pews without seeming to discover the one she sought. In a moment she had regained her composure and was mistress of herself once more. She had seen Rouletabille behind his pillar. She smiled at him, and my companions and I smiled in our turn.

A Mad Woman's Eyes.

"She has the eyes of a mad woman!"

I turned around quickly to see who had uttered the heartless words. It was a poor fellow whom Robert Darzac, out of the kindness of his heart, had made his assistant in the laboratory at the Sorbonne.

The man was named Brignolles, and was a distant cousin of the bridegroom. We knew of no other relative of Mr. Darzac whose family came originally from the Midi. Long ago he had lost both father and mother; he had neither brother nor sister, and seemed to have broken off all intercourse with his native province, from which he had brought an eager desire for success, an exceptional ability to work, a strong intellect and a natural need for affection, which had satisfied itself in his relations with Professor Stangerson and his daughter. He had also a legacy from Provence, his native place, a soft voice and slight accent, which had often brought a smile to the lips of his pupils at the Sorbonne, who, nevertheless, loved it as they might have loved a strain of music, which made the necessary dryness of studies a little less arid.

One beautiful morning, in the preceding spring, and consequently a year after the occurrences in the yellow room, Robert Darzac had presented Brignolles to his pupils. The new assistant had come direct from Aix, where he had been a tutor in the natural sciences, and where he had committed some fault of discipline which had caused his dismissal. But he had remembered that he was related to M. Darzac, the famous chemist, had taken the train to Paris, and had told such a piteous tale to the fiance of Mlle. Stangerson that Darzac, out of pity, had found means to associate his cousin with him in his work.

At that time, the health of Robert Darzac had ben far from flourishing. He was suffering from the reaction following the strong emotions which had nearly weighed him down at the Glandier and at the Court of Assizes; but one might have thought that the recovery, now assured, of Mathilde, and the prospect of their marriage, would have had a happy influence both upon the mental and physical condition of the professor.

We, however, remarked on the contrary, that from the day that Brignolles came to him—Brignolles, whose friendship should have been a precious solace, the weakness of M. Darzac seemed to increase. However, we were obliged to acknowledge that Brignolles was not to blame for that, for two unfortunate and unforseen accidents had occurred in the course of some experiments, which would have seemed, on the face of them not at all dangerous.

The first resulted from the unexpected explosion of a Gessler tube, which might have severely injured M. Darzac, but which only injured Brignolles, whose hands were badly scarred. The second, which might have been extremely grave, happened through the explosion of a tiny lamp against which M. Darzac was leaning. Happily he was not hurt, but his eyebrows were scorched, and for some time after his sight was slightly impaired, and he was unable to stand much sunlight.

Since the Glandier mysteries I had been in such a state of mind that I often found myself attaching importance to the most simple happenings. At the time of the second accident I was present, having come to seek Darzac at the Sorbonne. I myself led our friend to a doctor, and I rather dryly, I own, begged Brignolles, when he wished to accompany us, to remain at his post.

I Suspect Brignolles.

On the way, M. Darzac asked why I had wounded the poor fellow's feelings. I told him that I did not care for Brignolles's society, for the abstract reason that I did not like his manners, and for the concrete reason, on this special occasion, that I believed him to be responsible for the accident. M. Darzac demanded why I thought so, and I did not know how to answer, and he began to laugh—a laugh that was quickly silenced, however, when the doctor told him that he might easily have been made entirely blind, and that he might consider himself very lucky in having gotten off so well.

My suspicions of Brignolles were, doubtless, ridiculous, and no more accidents happened. All the same, I was so strongly prejudiced against the young man that, at the bottom of my heart, I blamed him for the slow improvement in M. Darzac's physical condition.

At the beginning of the Winter Darzac had such a bad cough that I entreated him to ask for leave of absence and to take a trip to the Midi—a prayer in which all his friends joined. The physicians advised San Remo. He went thither, and a week later he wrote to us that he felt much better—that it seemed to him as though a heavy weight had been lifted from his breast. "I can breathe here," he wrote. "When I left Paris, I seemed to be stifling."

This letter from M. Darzac gave me much food for thought, and I no longer hesitated to take Rouletabille into my confidence.

He agreed with me that it was a most peculiar coincidence that M. Darzac was so ill when Brignolles was with him and so much better when he and his young assistant were separated.

The impression that this was actually the fact was so strong in my mind that I would on no account have permitted myself to lose sight of Brignolles. No, indeed. I verily believe that if he had attempted to leave Paris I should have followed him. But he made no such attempt. On the contrary, he haunted the footsteps of M. Stangerson.

Under the pretext of asking news of M. Darzac, he presented himself at the house of the Professor almost every day. Once he made an effort to see Mlle. Stangerson, but I had painted his portarait to M. Darzac's fiancee in such unflatterable terms that I had succeeded in disgusting her with him completely—a fact on which I congratulated myself in my innermost soul.

M. Darzac remained four months at San Remo, and returned home at the end of that time almost completely restored to health. His eyes, however, were still weak, and he was under the necessity of taking the greatest care of them. Rouletabille and myself had resolved to keep a close watch on Brignolles, but we were satisfied that everything would be right when we were informed that the long-deferred marriage was to occur almost immediately, and that M. Darzac would take his wife away on a long honeymoon trip far from Paris—and from Brignolles.

Upon his return from San Remo M. Darzac had asked me:

"Well, how are you getting along with poor Brignolles? Have you decided that you were wrong about him?"

"Indeed I have not," was my response.

And Darzac turned away, laughing at me and uttering one of the Provencal jests which he affected when circumstances allowed him to be gay, and which found on his lips a new freshness since his visit to the Midi had accustomed him again to the accent of his childhood.

The Happy Bridegroom.

We knew that he was happy. But we had formed no real idea of how happy he was—for between the time of his return and the wedding day we had had few chances to see him—until we beheld him walking up the aisle of the church, his face fairly transformed. His slight, erect figure bore itself as proudly as though he were an Emperor. Happiness had made him another being.

"Anyone could guess that he was a bridegroom!" tittered Brignolles.

I left the neighborhood of the man who was so repulsive to me, and stepped behind poor M. Stangerson, who stood through the entire ceremony with his arms crossed on his breast, seeing nothing and hearing nothing. I was obliged to touch him on the shoulder when all was over to arouse him from his dream.

As they passed into the sacristy, M. Andre Hesse heaved a deep sigh.

"I can breathe again," he murmured.

"Why couldn't you breathe before, my friend?" asked M. Henri-Robert.

And M. Andre Hesse confessed that he had feared up to the last moment that the dead man would reappear.

"I can't help it," was the only response he would make when his friends rallied him. "I cannot bring myself to the idea that Frederic Larsan will stay dead for good."

And now we all—a dozen or so persons—were gathered in the sacristy. The witnesses signed the register, and the rest of us congratulated the newly wedded pair.

The sacristy was yet more dismal than the church, and I might have thought it was on account of the darkness that I could not perceive Joseph Rouletabille, if the room had not been so small. But, assuredly, he was not there. Mathilde had already asked for him twice, and M. Darzac requested me to go and look for him. I did so, but returned to the vestry without him. He had disappeared from the church.

"How strange it is!" exclaimed M. Darzac. "I can't understand it. Are you sure that you looked everywhere? He may be in some corner dreaming."

"I looked everywhere, and I called his name," I told him.

But M. Darzac was still not satisfied. He wanted to look through the church for himself. His search was better rewarded than mine, for he learned from a beggar, who was sitting in the porch with a tambourine, that Rouletabille had left the church a few minutes before and had been driven away in a hack. When the bridegroom brought this news to his wife, she appeared to be both pained and anxious. She called me to her side and said:

"My dear M. Sainclair, you know that we are to take the train in two hours. Will you hunt up our little friend and bring him to me, and tell him that his strange behavior is grieving me very much?"

"Count upon me," I said.

The Hunt for Rouletabille.

And I began a wild goose chase after Rouletabille. But I appeared at the station without him. Neither at his home nor at the office of his paper, nor at the Cafe du Barreau, where the necessities of his work often called him at this hour of the day, could I lay my hand on him. None of his comrades could tell me where I might chance to find him.

I leave you to think how unwillingly I turned my steps in the direction of the railroad station. M. Darzac was greatly disturbed, but as he had to look after the comfort of his fellow travellers (for Professor Stangerson, who was on his way to Mentone, was to accompany his daughter and her husband to Dijon, changing cars there, while the Darzacs continued their trip to Culos and Mt. Cenis), he asked me to break the bad news to his bride. I performed the commission, adding that Rouletabille would, without doubt, present himself before the train started. At these words, Mathilde began to cry softly, and shook her head:

"No—no!" she whispered. "It is all over. He will never come again."

And she stepped into the railway carriage.

It was at this point that the insufferable Brignolles, seeing the emotion of the newly-made bride, whispered again to M. Andre Hesse, "Look! Look! Hasn't she the eyes of a maniac? Ah, Robert has done wrong. It would have been better for him to wait." M. Hesse gave him a disdainful glance, and bade him be silent.

The Bride's Message.

Already the doors were closed. The bell on the engine began to sound its first slow strokes, and the calls of hack drivers began to rise: "Carriage, Monsieur? Carriage?" And then the quick last word which gave the signal for the departure.

But no Rouletabille.

We were all grieved, and, moreover, so surprised, that we remained on the platform, looking at Mme. Darzac, without thinking to wish her a pleasant journey. Professor Stangerson's daughter cast a long glance upon the quay, and, at the moment that the speed of the train began to accelerate, certain now that she was not to see her "little friend" again, she threw me an envelope from the car window.

And almost as though moved by an irresistible impulse, her face wearing an expression of something that resembled terror, she added in a tone so strange that I could not help recalling the horrible speeches of Brignolles:

"Au revoir, my friends—or adieu."

(To Be Continued To-morrow.)

TROLLEY CRASH VICTIMS RALLY

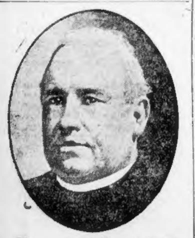
Word was received from the Framingham Hospital to-day that Morris Bronstein and his four-year-old son of Roxbury, who were reported dying from injuries received in a collision of their team and a trolley car, had rallied and that both would recover. The child is the more seriously injured, having sustained a broken thigh and internal injuries. Bronstein was thrown from his carriage and besides had bruises and internal injuries, suffered a badly wrenched back.

There were two carriages in the party, four persons in each. They were driving from Framingham to Hopkinton and were on the Braggville road, going along in the dark, when the car came up from behind and crashed into the buggy containing the Bronsteins. The noise caused the horse drawing the other carriage to run away, and the occupants were thrown out when the animal shied and ran into the gutter.

The officials of the road to-day began an investigation of the accident.

1,000 SUFFER BY FLOOD.

DENVER, Aug. 9.—Nearly 1,000 people in the west section of Denver were driven from their homes, damage was done to the extent of $100,000 and four persons are missing as a result of the heavy flood caused by a cloudburst at Green Mountain, which swept down Bear Creek into the Platte River in a gush of water fifteen feet high.



The principle of Father John's Medicine is simple. It furnishes the food the body requires, and strengthens each organ so that it can do its work. Guaranteed.

VAN DYKE DIES IN AUTO CRASH

TURNERS FALLS, Aug. 9.—A plunge over a bank of rock seventy-five feet high into the Connecticut river of an automobile in which George Van Dyke, aged sixty-four, of Lancaster, N. H., and one of the best known lumber men in New England, and his chauffeur, Frederick R. Hodgdon, aged thirty, of North Stratford, Vt., were riding, resulted fatally for the two men, both dying at a hospital from the injuries which they received.

Mr. Van Dyke, who was known as "The Lumber King of New England," had been in this vicinity during the past few days, watching the work of running logs down the river, which is very low at present on account of the long drought.

PARIS GETS GRAND OPERA AT TEN CENTS

PARIS, Aug. 9.—The special committee of the Paris Municipal Council, which has charge of the municipal theatre, the Gaite, reports that it is fully satisfied with the success that has met its efforts to provide the people of Paris who cannot afford to go to the Opera or the Opera Comique with good opera at low prices.

The city made an agreement with the Isola brothers in July, 1907, by which the latter were to give at least 250 performances a year at prices ranging from ten cents to $1. They were entitled to draw on the resources of the Opera and the Opera Comique for scenery and chorus assistance. The first season was a trial one, but it was so satisfactory that the council gave the Isola brothers a lease of the municipal theatre for ten years.

ROLLICKING DAYS AT OLD NANTASKET

These are the rollicking days at Nantasket Beach, the great South Shore resort with a sand strip miles long and a hundred yards broad where the breakers roll in from the open sea. These are also great days at the Grant's Roller Coaster, Ye Old Mill and Grant's Flying Horses, great rides high and low, within a stone's throw of each other at Nantasket, where every week on Mondays and Fridays the SUNDAY AMERICAN Outing Club gathers with half-fare tickets to the several amusements, clipped from the SUNDAY AMERICAN. These free tickets save you five cents at either attraction.

SHORTAGE CHARGE AGAINST COLLECTOR

Charged with thirteen counts of larceny, and one count of forging and uttering, Edward C. Stevens, collector for the provision firm of J. G. Walker & Sons, No. 26 North street, was arrested to-day by Inspector Angell on an indictment warrant. The complaints were placed before the last Grand Jury by the firm after they discovered an alleged shortage of $500 in Stevens's accounts.

CUNARD LINE CUTS ROUTE

With the bringing into use of the new docks at Fishguard, South Wales, the Cunard Line has shortened the journey 100 miles between America, London and the Continent, and easy five-day trips from New York to London will be the rule after August 25, when the Mauretania leaves New York and begins on the Fishguard route. The Cunard Line hopes eventually to be permitted to cut out Queenstown and enter the channel ports the same as the swift ships of other British lines and the big German lines.

The Mauretania and Lusitania will make the five-day trips, and the Campania and Lucania will do the trip in one day more. This means that travellers will land in London on Mondays or Tuesday, according to the boats they take. The line has been handicapped because of the long wait at Queenstown for the mails from London, and the British Government would not abandon the final mails to give the boats three or four hours' start. Now that the late mails are to be taken at Fishguard, the boat will have to pick up only the Irish mails and passengers at Queenstown, making a short stop.

WEDS HERE AFTER 3,000-MILE TRIP

Miss Benevita Angelo, who arrived in Boston last week on the White Star liner Celtic, after a 3,000-mile journey over land and water from Italy, married Domenick Anceloni of Revere at the Italian Church in that town.

Three years ago, in a little province of Italy, the girl promised her hand in marriage to Domenick with a condition that he prove his worth first. A short time afterward Domenick came to this country and entered the grocery business. A month ago he wrote his fiancee that he had made good.

COWS ARE FOND OF MILKING MACHINE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The Nebraska experiment station of the Department of Agriculture is experimenting with milking machines. A preliminary report upon the progress of the investigation issued by the department contains this information:

It has been found that most cows yield their milk as freely and fully when milked with a machine as when milked by hand, but with some individual cows the use of the machine is not entirely successful. Heifers accustomed to the machines from the first appear to do better than older cows which have been milked by hand.

ECONOMY IN RIVER AND HARBOR POLICY.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 9.—After holding a conference with President Taft before the latter left for Beverly, Representative Alexander of Buffalo, N. Y., the new chairman of the rivers and harbors committee, announces that he intends to pursue a policy of economy in river and harbor appropriations. The President informed him that economy would be the watchword in all of the large committees.

NAVAL PRISON FARE SHAVED

With one punch Secretary of the Navy Meyer has knocked all the fun out of a prisoner in the United States Navy. He has reduced the prison allowance for rations from thirty cents a day per prisoner to twenty-two cents. This means no desserts, practically no meat and, worst of all, it means pie only once a year.

Pie is to be passed out in naval prisons only on Christmas day. The "Jackie" put in the jug the day after Christmas for a year's sentence won't get a slice of pie for 365 days.

The order affects about 1,100 men now in the various naval prisons and prison ships along the two coasts. Prisoners have heretofore had pie on Sundays and holidays. The reduction of the prison ration by eight cents out of thirty takes away the very portions that make prison life worth living. Secretary Meyer says in his order:

"This is done to make the prospect of confinement somewhat less alluring to men to decide too easily to take the risk of desertion or to commit misdemeanors that result in trial and sentence to imprisonment."

ENGLAND'S DRAMATIC STAR COMING HERE.

Harrison Grey Fiske has returned from London with a number of theatrical plans for the future. He reached New York just in time to greet Mrs. Fiske, who came from Minneapolis, where she closed her season. Mr. Fiske has signed contracts for the appearance in America of an actor whom in many respects he considers the best on the English stage—Lewis Waller. He will come to America a year from September with his company and his own plays and productions. He will play in New York city and will devote twelve weeks to a few of the more important cities of America.

COUPONS TO WHITE CITY REAL MONEY

FREE HIDES WINS REST FOR DOUGLAS

After an untiring fight of twelve years for the revision of the tariff on hides William L. Douglas, who during that period has never taken a complete rest, will, now that free hides are an accomplished fact, taken an extended vacation. Ever since he passage of the Dingley bill in 1897 Mr. Douglas has been striving for tariff reform.

LEARNING TO SWIM, DROWNS

NATICK, Aug. 9.—Fifteen-year-old Hilbert Howe Hosmer, of the prominent Hosmer family of this town, was drowned to-day while trying to learn to swim in Dug Pond. He was with fifteen-year-old Oliet Loker, who could swim only a little. Hosmer's body has not been recovered.

This is the first fatality at Dug Pond since that water was opened for boating, bathing and fishing a month ago.

Young Hosmer was the only son of Mrs. Bertha Hosmer of Walnut Hill, widow of the late George Hosmer. When Mrs. Hosmer was told her boy was drowned she was prostrated. It is feared the effect on the mother will be serious. Hilbert Hosmer was a bright, energetic lad, and was preparing to enter Newton High School in September.

SON OF AUTHOR OF "AME7RICA" DEAD

Taken ill on the way to rejoin his wife at Newton, Samuel Francis Smith, former Mayor of Davenport, Ia., and the son of the late Samuel Francis Smith, the author of "America," died in Toronto. The body will brought to Newton for interment.

Smith had a meteoric career in politics and finance in the West, and was arrested, tried and convicted of embezzling $1,000 after he had dissipated a fortune variously estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars by unwise speculation. Because of his advanced age and in order that he might return to his family, Governor Carroll suspended the sentence after Smith had served five years of a sentence of eleven years.

TROOPS WAIT CALL FOR BIG GAME OF WAR

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 9.—The citizens and officials of New Bedford are preparing to welcome the "Army of Invasion," a portion of which will land here from New York and New London on Saturday next and begin the campaign in the great military game which has for its object the capture of Boston.

Boston will be defended by Massachusetts troops. The "Army of Invasion" will comprise the pick of the New York, Connecticut, New Jersey and District of Columbia militia, and will number about 10,000 men.

They will come to New Bedford on Fall River line boats. On the Puritan will be the Seventh and the Fourteenth regiments of New York infantry and the horses of the officers.

The Pilgrim will bring the first battalion of field artillery, three troops of Squadron A, the First and Second Signal Corps, all of New York, and the famous Essex troop of New Jersey.

The steamer Boston will have for freight the guns of the New York field artillery and the men and the guns of the District of Columbia artillery.

One of the Fall River line boats will pick up the Connecticut troops at New London.

The United States transport Kilpatrick will be the flagship of the invasion fleet and will have General Wood, his staff and foreign military attachees on board.

When the "Army of Invasion" lands at New Bedford piers it will march to the camp ground on the George White estate, which lies south of Little Quittacus pond and between the North Rochester road and Great Quittacus pond. The army authorities have assured New Bedford officials that the water supply of the city will not be contaminated by the troops. War discipline will prevail while the troops are here.

The officers of the invading militia regiments have issued an order giving some of the rules for the expedition. The order, after warning the men that their socks should be thick, well fitted and without darns, says: "After midnight, August 13, all telegraph and telephone lines will be considered destroyed and both belligerents will be restricted to the use of those means of communication which actually accompany the respective forces at the opening of the campaign or which may be secured subsequently to replace defective or broken paraphernalia. The getting of information by spies, civilians or members of the contending forces not in uniform beyond the lines, is absolutely forbidden, as being under the circumstances inconsistent with the conditions of simulated warfare."

The actual collision of opposing forces is to be prevented under all circumstances.

POPE BARS DECOLLETE

ROME, Aug. 9.—Imposing ceremonies are being held to-day at St. Peter's in honor of the sixth anniversary of the coronation of Pope Pius X.

The Pope has given orders that no woman in decollete dress is to be admitted to the services. When a prelate remarked that it was the fashion now for prominent women to wear low-necked gowns and that the hot weather justified it, the Pope replied

"Nonsense! If the women find it too much of a sacrifice to deprive themselves of the pleasure of following an immoral fashion, it is useless for them to attend church ceremonies. They would better go to the theatre or to other profane spectacles where such fashions find more admirers."

SAYS BOY WAS SLAIN FOR CASH

That Joseph Whitcomb of No. 31 Parker street, Quincy, was murdered for the few dollars he had in his pockets is now the belief of the dead man's mother. Whitcomb, who was forty-five, and single, left his home on the night of June 5. On June 14 his body was found floating in Boston Harbor near the East Boston slip of the North Ferry.

"Joseph lived for me," said Mrs. Mary C. Whitcomb, the mother of the dead man. She is seventy-seven years of age. "He was my sole support. He would never marry for he wanted to care for me. I know that he was not accidentally drowned. I believe he was robbed, murdered and then thrown into the water."

Apparently bearing out the charges of the mother, who makes them merely with a woman's quick intuition, was the verdict of the medical examiner at the time of the finding of Whitcomb's body. The doctor, after his autopsy, reported that there was no water in Whitcomb's lungs.

"BLACK HAND" PRISONER HELD; WILL NOT TALK

Benjamin Silva.

CLAREMONT, N. H., Aug. 9.—Benjamin Silva, alias Siler, who was captured here Saturday night at the point of police revolvers just after he had picked up a decoy package of money left at Pine Grove stand-pipe, was held by County Solicitor Brown of Sullivan County to-day for a continued hearing to-morrow, when Postal Inspector William Stone of Concord will be present.

Silva is charged with using the mails to send threatening letters to his employer, B. Steinfield, the junk dealer, and to George Dole, a wealthy butcher.

In spite of the arrest of Silva there is much fear in the town still. It is argued that, as the threatening letters alluded to "Our Association," there are others concerned in the black hand demands. The police, elated at this arrest, are working to trace any others who may be concerned. Silva, much at ease and consuming endless cigarettes, refuses to talk.

BOLIVIA FACES ARMY REVOLT

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Aug. 9.—Bolivia to-day faces a revolution over the seating of President-elect Villazon. The army is preparing to overthrow the Villazon forces and place Senor Montes at the head of the government. The revolt is caused by the popular opinion that Senor Villazon favors the acceptance of the arbitration award in the dispute with Argentine Republic over territory. Senor Villazon is to take office on Thursday of this week. Information was received to-day of several violent outbreaks in the interior against the residences of Argentinians and Peruvians. It is also now known that the Bolivian Congress will reject the arbitration award in the boundary dispute. The army leaders declare that it is unlikely Senor Villazon will ever ascend to the presidency and if he does he will not rule a week. The choice of the military leaders is Senor Montes, who will be made President if the revolution is successful.

RECORD CROWDS AT WONDERLAND

Besides Wonderland's regular patronage more than 15,000 excursionists visited the park last week from Manchester, N. H., New Bedford, Worcester and Fitchburg. This week Wonderland welcomes an even greater number of excursionists.

To-day and to-morrow holders of BOSTON AMERICAN free tickets have free the great Salome production of the Prophet and Princess, the Cinderella show and free park admission, in addition to a dozen half fare tickets to the park's principal attraction.

The Cinderella production includes twenty singing and dancing boys and girls. Commencing to-day the Cinderella production opens with a parade around the board walk.

GAMBLERS FINED $10.

The thirty-four men caught in a raid upon gamblers at Bunker Hill and Sprague streets, Charlestown, by Police Sergeants Toomey and Killam and a squad of officers, all pleaded nolo before Judge Corbett in the District Court to-day and were fined $10 each.

LABOR

A nine-hour day, with Saturday half-holidays from April 1 to October 31, will be given all members of coal hoisting engineers' union No. 74 of Boston, after May 1 of next year, the new working agreement to that effect having been unanimously indorsed by the men's union after its acceptance by the employers.

The long pending wage differences of the longshoremen of Greater Boston have been referred to the Knights of Labor District Assembly No. 30, by the Longshoremen's trade council. It is asserted that the main differences at present, relate to the number of buckets which each unloading gang should keep running when unloading a vessel.

Boston Bartenders' Union to-day has nearly 2,000 good-standing members enrolled on its books. The organization has appointed a special committee to investigate the alleged swindle of business houses by some souvenir book sharps, who are said to be soliciting advertising under the pretense that they are getting out a book for the union, when no such book is being issued.

A special meeting of the executive committee of the Boston Central Labor Union will be held at Wells Memorial Hall to-night to consider business of importance.

Teamsters' Union No. 25 of this city has voted solidly against holding a Labor Day parade this year. The team drivers' district council will hold a special meeting at No. 12 Kneeland street, Wednesday evening. George W. Griggs of Chicago, international auditor, will be present and address the council.

The striking sign writers will meet to-night in Friendship Hall, No. 12 Kneeland street, to receive the report of officers and the strike committee. Eight firms already have settled with the men, with several additional settlements in sight, and it also is announced that not one man is working in opposition to the strike in Boston. The new wage scale calls for $4 for journeymen and $3 for helpers, an increase of fifty cents a day.

John J. Hynes of this city, at present attending the Sheet Metal Workers' convention in Denver, has been elected national organizer for that union. Mr. Hynes formerly was president of the Boston Central Labor Union.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, Aug. 9.—There is evidence of a substantial increase of public interest, not so much in the wider demand for securities as in the great number of inquiries received by banking and brokerage houses as to what would be desirable securities to buy, and whether the present did not afford a better opportunity for speculative commitments on the bull side than was likely to be found later in the year. Western sentiment appeared to be influenced by the stimulus of highly favorable crop conditions, and among local speculators anticipation of a satisfactory crop report is almost general. Of course, it is to be expected that in view of the increasing activity in general business, and the prospective demand for crop-moving purposes, money will work higher for some time to come, but it is contended that there are just as good possibilities for a bull market under rates of 4 to 5 per cent. for call and time money as under such conditions as have existed here for months past.

Measured in terms of food and general commodities, stocks in Wall Street are not very high. In mere figures they are terrifying. Union Pacific at its record price of 204 is cheap compared with string beans at 15 cents a quart, milk at 8 cents and meat at current prices.

Peace and contention are the life of business, but there is no contention at present. There is too much peace to suit Wall Street. The bright picture has nothing for a contrast, and for that reason some of the most experienced speculators are becoming worried. Every question about which there has been any dispute in public seems to have been settled, at least temporarily. An era of good feeling has come apparently. Unless something arises in the near future to cause contention, a very important party in Wall Street will begin to sell just because everybody is too happy to last.

This good news is taking the shape of increased net earnings by the railroads and all the industrial companies. During the panic the railroads were forced to economize by discharging men and doing away with certain fancy services. It has been discovered that a smaller number of men can take care of all the business of the roads. Therefore, the operating expenses have been permanently reduced. The standard of efficiency is very high on the part of workmen.

The Steel Trust is a striking illustration of the increase of efficiency without increase of cost. It is learned from headquarters that 92 per cent. of the trust capacity now in operation is equal to 103 per cent. of the capacity of the trust at the time of the previous boom. This increase has been obtained without raising fixed charges. The net earnings of the trust must mount very rapidly under these circumstances.

The high prices at which the stock of the Central Railroad of New Jersey has been selling since the first of the year and its extraordinary quotation at the present time are not unnaturally taken to indicate an increase in the dividend disbursement in the near future. Estimated earnings of the road for the fiscal year ended June 30 would certainly indicate that this could be done and still leave a substantial surplus to transfer to the account of profit and loss. Although the past year has not been as prosperous as the previous one from the point of view of earnings, yet it seems from these figures that Jersey Central is a potential 10 per cent. stock. If this amount had been paid out in dividends last year there would still have remained a surplus of $1,807,379 to transfer to profit and loss.

Out of the surplus for the year ended June 30, 1908, the sum of $2,000,000 was set aside for additions and betterments to meet contemplated expenditures for new bridges, docks, wharves, and other similar work, including the establishment of a marine repair yard and additional piers for the development of increased lighterage traffic; also additional yards at Jersey City. It is impossible to estimate the amount of money spent for these items during the year ended June 30, but this year's surplus of $2,356,115 could be used for this purpose.

Now that the tariff is settled for some time at least, Treasury officials are expressing most optimistic views as to business activity. As a result they expect to see Treasury revenues increase to a point where monthly deficits will disappear and where each month will run on an even keel or else there will be a surplus.

In view of this situation, Secretary McVeagh is not worried about the issue of Panama bonds. He may not take up the subject until fall. It is pointed out that he has authority, should the Treasury need strengthening, to issue three per cent. certificates of indebtedness and thus obtain funds without making a bond issue until the amount advanced in building the Panama canal has reached such a figure that it would be prudent to reimburse the Treasury from it.

The annual reports of the holding company do not specify the amounts received from the Leyland Line as dividends; these are grouped under the head "miscellaneous earnings." The balance sheet of the combine does not include the operations of the Leyland Line in any particular except the dividends received and value of investment. Both the Leyland and the National companies make separate reports to their shareholders.

ATCHISON IS STOCK LEADER

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The week began in Wall street with two new high records. One was in Great Northern Ore certificates, and the other was in Atchison. The ore certificates were purchased because the Steel Trust will take a record amount of ore this season. Atchison rose because the government crop report due at 2 p. m. was expected to show a record-breaking corn crop. The Missouri report was better than expected. Atchison and the other railroads of that territory expect to make record earnings this year.

Among the specialties that were active was American Ice, which crossed 40. Chesapeake & Ohio made a record of 81. Rock Island also made a record selling above 40. Cotton broke nearly $1 a bale and wheat was half a cent lower in Chicago.

London sold stocks freely before the New York opening and caused reaction of half a point in some cases. Business was very light when the American market opened and the usual Monday morning rush of investment orders was not forthcoming.

$5,000,000,000 FOR IRRIGATION

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 9.—The seventeenth National Irrigation Congress opened its sessions here to-day to consider a proposition for the government to issue $5,000,000,000 worth of bonds redeemable in 100 years for the development of the West. Among the speakers to-day are: George Ames Barstow of Texas, president of the congress; Joseph M. Carey, Cheyenne, Wyo.; Dr. Enoch A. Bryan, president of the Washington State College; F. H. Newell, director of the United States reclamation service; Dr. George C. Pardes, ex-Governor of California, and James J. Hill, head of the great Northern Railroad system.

LAKE COPPER LOCAL FEATURE

WALL STREET, Aug. 9.—Local stocks opened firm this forenoon with realizing sales in evidence which, however, had little or no effect as the market quickly absorbed all offerings. Lake Copper was the feature with its 1⅛ point advance to 34⅞. Reports from this property continue of the most favorable character which accounts for the popularity of this issue.

North Lake was sympathetically strong and rose to 11⅛. Superior Copper was firmer and a trifle more active. It advanced to 59. Amalgamated was influenced by arbitrage dealings and was both heavy and firm. Speculation for the present seems to be in the Lake Superior stocks, although the tone to the whole mining share list is strong and with a strong upward tendency.

Curb trading was of good volume and the market there was very broad. Bay State Gas was the most active stock, but with slight price change. Rhode Island Coal stiffened to 7½. Cactus, Davis Daly and First National were other active stocks at slightly improved prices.

MILLION IN MORTGAGES LAST WEEK

The files of the Real Estate Exchange show a slight falling off in the entries of both transfers and mortgages for the past week in Suffolk County as compared with the figures for the same week of a year ago. Although there were four less mortgages filed last week than during the same week of 1908, the total amount of these instruments exceeded the million mark and was about $300,000 more than a year ago. The record for the week, however, was far ahead of the corresponding week for 1907.

The following table gives the figures for the week as compared with the corresponding weeks of 1908 and 1907:

	1909.	1908.	1907.
Number of transfers	421	492	383
Number of mtgs.	421	492	383
Amount of mtgs.	$1,015,250	$780,821	$621,128

The appended tabulation, also compiled by the Real Estate Exchange, gives in detail each day's transactions for the week beginning August 2 and ending August 7:

	Sales.	Mtgs.	Amt. of mtgs.
August 2	80	48	$413,857
August 3	74	38	130,847
August 4	79	40	154,815
August 5	68	25	81,025
August 6	81	35	197,891
August 7	33	12	36,815
Total	421	198	$1,015,250

In the report of sales to-day is included the sale of the three and one-half-story and basement brick house and 1,400 square feet of land, all assessed for $5,800, at No. 97 Hudson street, near Oak street, South End, which has been purchased by Moses K. Shibley from George D. Moses et al. The land is rated for $3,000.

Frederick Kem has sold to Aristomenes Zagoras the three and one-half story brick house an 1,306 square feet of land at No. 141 Hudson street, near Curve street, South End. This estate is rated for a total of $5,000, of which $2,600 is on the land.

Another South End property sold is that at No. 3 Emerald street, near Castle street, comprising a brick house and 520 square feet of land, which has been purchased by Michael C. Gately et ux. from Bridget O'Connell. The property is taxed on a total valuation of $3,500, of which $1,700 is on the land.

Henry W. Savage reports that he has sold, and that final papers have passed, a three-family frame house, located at No. 21 Leslie street, Dorchester. Riley G. Crosby conveyed to Solomon and Rose Hartog, who buy for a home and investment. There are 4,000 feet of land, assessed for $1,000, the property carrying a total assessment of $4,800. The price paid was much in excess of the taxed valuation.

Elizabeth A. Cashman has sold to Margaret McDonald a frame dwelling house and 2,724 square feet of land at No. 252 Hamilton street, near Draper street, Dorchester. The estate is assessed on a total of $2,800, of which $80 is on the land.

The managers of the new Hotel Puritan, when they first started the construction of the building, adopted the day-work plan, and made out a schedule of how much should be accomplished by certain dates. Despite the excessive heat, which affected many workmen, and the long spell of cold weather at the first of the season, they now find themselves five days ahead of their schedule, with everything progressing in a most satisfactory manner.

LIFE SAVERS RACE THROUGH HELL GATE

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Twelve swimmers, out of a field of seventeen which started on the swim through Hell Gate, yesterday, finished the hard contest around its whirlpools, eddies and uncertain rapids, taking a route from the East One Hundreth street pier and finished at the bathing pavilion at North Beach, L. I. Five of the swimmers were overcome and picked up the boats, the last swimmer F. Linnenkohl, giving up within 100 feet of the end.

The race was the annual one of the Tenth Division of the United States Volunteer Life Saving Corps and for two months the crews have been preparing. Peter Ott, of the Yorkville Corps, who finished second last year, made the statement as he prepared to dive off that he would win, and then made good, covering the distance in 1 hour 27¾ minutes—just three minutes ahead of Captain Crennan, the second man to finish.

Five prizes are given. The first is a gold medal; the second, a silver medal, trimmed with gold, and the others bronze medals.

Ott has been with the corps four years. He is twenty-one years old. Captain Crennan, second prize winner, has a list of twenty-eight rescues to his credit. John Gilday, who finished third, won first prize last year in 1:22.

Ott used the side and trudgeon stroke; Crennan the crawl and trudgeon; Gilday the breast stroke, and Kirschner the overhand, buckle and half-English.

Those who finished the race, and the time, follows:

1—Peter Ott	Yorkville	1:27¾
2—F. Crennan	Dominican	1:30¾
3—John Gilday	Harlem	1:39½
4—P. Kirschner	Harlem	1:37¼
5—R. Hart	Harlem	1:39½
6—D. Greenburg	Pastimes	1:40½
7—F. Fries	Yorkville	1:42
8—T. Citek	Dominican	1:43
9—F. Vaneck	Queensboro	1:40½
10—J. McCauley	Harlem	1:47½
11—E. Burden	Yorkville	1:49½
12—J. O'Connor	Dominican	1:53

Thomas Rooney, of the Hell Gate division, although not entered, swam the entire distance, coming in second, and making almost as good time as Ott.

RUNNER KIVIAT LATEST WONDER OF ATHLETICS

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The remarkable performance of A. R. Kiviat at Asbury Park last Saturday puts the schoolboy wonder in a new light. Veteran athletes who saw the work of the youngster in the two-thirds of a mile run were not a bit backward in saying Kiviat is the second edition of Sheppard, Gissing, Kilpatrick, Conneff, Burke and Meyers.

The Staten Island boy ran a wonderful race against a field of clever performers and from scratch covered the distance in 2 minutes 47 3-5 seconds, breaking the world's record of 2 minutes 48 1-5 seconds, held by W. G. George, made November 30, 1882. Of course, the record will not stand, as it was made on a track without a border, but it nevertheless shows what this schoolboy can do.

That Kiviat is going to startle the athletic world in the near future is expected. He is improving every day ,and Sheppard and Gessing must look to their laurels when they oppose the schoolboy. Lawson Robertson, who is handling Kiviat, says he is a great athlete and will make them all hustle.

KETCHELL FAVORITE OVER SAM LANGFORD

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Ketchel will arrive here from the Coast this week to begin training for his ten-round bout with Sam Langford at the Fairmont A. C. on September 3. Ketchel, in street clothes, got on the scales the other day and tipped the beam at 186. If he meets Langford at catchweights he says he will weigh under 170.

Langford has started training methods in Boston and will not come here until about a week before the battle. He says he will leave no stone unturned in preparing himself for the fray and expresses the belief that if he stops Ketchel he will have a chance to take the latter's place in the ring with Johnson in October.

Betting men say, however, that they will make Ketchel a slight favorite over Langford and that it will not surprise them if the white man wins decisively because of his aggressiveness, hitting and ability to take punishment.

STOLE SECOND BASE, THIRD AND HOME

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 9.—New York, with Wiltse pitching, defeated St. Louis in the second game of the series, 3 to 0. Raleigh, a young left-hander from California, worked for St. Louis and in eight innings held the visitors to three hits. In the ninth O'Hara got a base on balls, stole second and third and he and Bridwell worked the double steal for the third run.

RUNNER SVANBERG SAILS.

John Svanberg, Marathon runner, sailed on the steamship Auguste Victoria for Sweden, where he will rest for the Summer before his coming contests in this country next Winter. Svanberg said he was greatly disappointed because he was unable to get a match with Alfred Shrubb, the English runner, for a fifteen-mile contest.

TWO BASEBALL RIVALS TO MEET

On Saturday, August 14, the two old rivals, the Notre Dames of Roxbury and Roger Wolcott A. A. of Dorchester, will cross bats at the Dunbar avenue grounds, the game slated for 3 o'clock. It will be a game well worth witnessing as the rivalry is intense. It will bring together two of the best teams in Massachusetts and notwithstanding the fact that the Rogers hold a victory over the conquerors of the Notre Dames, the game will be close. Leo Callahan, the little southpaw of the Notres will have to look to his laurels as "Lefty" Duffy is certainly a comer as a slabbist. White will catch for the Notres while Hagerty, who used to catch for the Notres, will take care of Duffy's benders.

TY COBB IS NO PITCHER.

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 9.—In an exhibition the Detroit Americans defeated the Scranton State League team, 13 to 11. "Ty" Cobb essayed a new role, in the pitcher's box, for four innings and his experiment came near costing him team a defeat.

GOLF GOSSIP NEWS OF THE LINKS

It looked rather like a family game when father and son took the prizes at Allston Friday. Dr. G. C. Ainsworth of Woodland went over the course in the afternoon in 89 and with his 24 handicap he landed the low net with 65. His son, a schoolboy golfer with a 14 handicap, made a very nice 80, and was second with 66 net. Lockwood and Tully, who tied for the best gross at 73, will play off.

The Wollaston Golf Club announces its second open amateur tournament for Saturday of this week, and may well be assured of a large field. This club is one of the best in the State to visit, not only for its course, but the club house and the good time the players always have are great inducements for attending. The play will be the usual 18 holes medal handicap with gross and net prizes, and the field Saturday ought to eclipse the 97 entry of the last month's meeting.

Johnny Anderson, the well known Woodland golfer and former State champion, who has been abroad for the last month, left Liverpool last Friday, and will in all probability be in Boston in time to enter the August Essex County tournament, in which he played so well last year. Of all the courses that he visited abroad he thinks St. Andrews is the finest ever. He had a chance to play this course three times, making a 78, 80 and 79.

The sixth 18-hole handicap invitation tournament of the Myopia Hunt Club, Hamilton, Mass., was held Saturday. A good sized field represented the three invited clubs namely, Essex County, Nahant and Salem. These tournaments have been a source of great enjoyment to the participants. Ten meetings were planned and there now remain four to be played. The next event is on Saturday, August 21.

The President's Cup tournament at the Ekwanok Country Club starts Wednesday of this week. The winner of the first division gets the president's cup, while the winner of the losing sixteen has the Manchester Cup. There will be prizes for the third, fourth and fifth sixteens, and for the losing eight of the third flight.

BOXING BITS OF NEWS

The Apollo A. C. of Salem will hold a boxing show on August 16. A fine card of sport is being arranged by the directors.

They have figured just two more fights for Lew Powell on the coast before he will be a runner-up with Nelson. Kid Harrison, who knocked out Jack Clifford in nine rounds the same night that Lew beat Hudson, is picked as Powell's next opponent. They think Powell will win that. Then the winner of the Frayne-Hyland bout and then—oh, then, Mr. Nelson, lightweight champion of the world and Hegewisch.

Willus Britt doesn't think that the present Jeffries-Johnson spat is going to hurt the Ketchel-Jay thing. Not Willus. He says: "Ketchel was ever a creature of surprises, and to prove him such, I have purposely pointed him for Sam Langford. 'Steve' will win that fight, if only to prove his ability to cope with Jack Johnson. Down deep in my heart I have no idea of ever hearing Jeff crunch resin under foot again. Despite the fact that he is lower in flesh than when he started eastward, his wind isn't of the best, and he knows it and Sam Berger will admit it. It contend that I have the heavyweight champion of the world under my wing, and I'm glad that we will have the opportunity to place Stanley before a New York audience, pitted against a real fighter. That's Langford. Jeff? Oh, he's going to Germany."

A prominent sport, just arriving from San Francisco, says that Monte Attell is totally blind in his left eye. Owens Moran put the eye to the bad when the two fought in Philadelphia a few years back.

Lew Powell, since his quick knockout of Chick Hudson at San Francisco, is highly thought of as a lightweight possibility there. Powell has always been a consistent performer, save that he lacked a knockout punch. He has always depended upon his cleverness to win his battles. He read so many criticisms about his failure to knock out Young Eine that he determined to floor Mr. Hudson in jig time, and he did. It was his maiden effort as a knocker-out.

FRANK JONES PORTSMOUTH ALES

MIGHTY HONUS TO PLAY FIRST FOR PIRATES

PITTSBURG, Aug. 9.—When Hans Wagner returns to the game, which he likely will do to-day, he may not be seen at his regular stand, shortstop, for Fred Clarke is thinking seriously of sending the Flying Dutchman to first base in place of Abstein, who has not been pounding much air out of the bulb in the last few games.

Abbaticchio has been at Wagner's place at shortstop and has been doing very good work. He has hit better than has Abstein and with him at short and Wagner at the initial corner, the Pirate boss figures he has a cracking good infield. Of course Honus won't be kept permanently at the first pillow, but he will be there until Abstein is able to locate the ball more frequently.

The management of the Pittsburg club gives it out that there is no worrying whatsoever being done about the chances of Honus getting back into the harness for they feel sure he is able to play his regular game at any moment.

Wagner has practically been doing nothing since he left the game except to make a visit to Bouesetter Reese at Youngstown, O., and the rest should do him worlds of good.

Honus was out gamboling on the green behind short field before the double-header with the Boston Doves on Saturday and was just as active as any time in his career. This gave the fans a great deal of confidence that he would be back in the game immediately.

BUSY WEEK FOR TEAMS IN TWO LEAGUES

There is certainly some work cut out for the teams in the two big leagues this week.

The Boston Red Sox will have to finish out their series with the White Legs from Chi. town, and while that doesn't look very rocky, they may have hard times with the Cleveland Naps, which team somes on Wednesday. Larry Lajoie's men have not been playing particularly hard, but they always put up a pretty snappy game when they get to Boston, so the Red Sox aren't counting on anything easy.

The Giants will stay in St. Louis until after Wednesday's game and then will go to the Cubs' camp. This looks like a red hot series, for the Cubs are playing the same smooth baseball that won them the world's championship. Their pitchers are going like clock-work and so are the McGraw twirlers, especially Mathewson, Ames and Wiltse.

The New York Highlanders have a chance to climb back into the first division as they have been putting up pretty classy exhibitions and if the Red Sox are able to do any stunts with the Naps, the chances of the Stallings tribe will be increased many fold. Their pitchers, Wilson, Manning, Warhop, Doyle and Quinn, are in fine form at present as last week's games show.

The Tigers are fighting tooth and nail to remain in first place until they return home from the East. They have two more games to play in Philadelphia, which will probably extend them to the limit, but after that they visit Washington, where they may be able to increase their lead, but not to any great extent, as the Athletics will meet the crippled St. Louis Browns on the same days.

Baseball News and Notes

That mild mannered player, Otto Greminger, who used to play third base at the South End grounds, assaulted an umpire at Montgomery, Ala., after a game, as he resented something the ump said to him during the contest. The indicator man must have been at fault.

Kid Gleason, secured by the York team and made captain and manager of the Tri-State League club, has quit the team suddenly.

Providence may feel the loss of Russell Blackburn, the phenomenal shortstop, who is out of the game probably for the rest of the season.

There are twenty-two players in the Western League who are batting .300 or better. Miller of Pueblo leads with an average of .363, and Smith of Sioux City is second with a mark of .354. Both have played in more than seventy games.

When the Eastern League season ends the Highlanders will take Pitcher Ford, Second Baseman Gardner and Shortstop Foster from the Jersey City club. These young players cannot be excelled in their respective positions by any of the minor leaguers.

Charles Radbourne, the father of the famous old pitcher of the Providence and other teams, died at Bloomington, Ill., recently, at the age of eighty-five. He was always prominent in outdoor sports.

The Cincinnati Reds have bought Third Basemen Alvin Dolan of the Rockford team of the Wisconsin-Illinois League. The price was $2,000. Dolan, of course, has been the sensation of the league.

Pirate fans are happy because Abbaticchio is filling Honus Wagner's shoes so satisfactorily. He may for a while, but there is nothing like the Flying Dutchman.

But few Indians make good in baseball. Mike Balenti, the Carlisle boy, has just been released by the Dayton team.

Phil Lewis, the Cornell boy so long with Brooklyn, is only hitting at .215 gait for Baltimore, and he is losing caste.

Joe Kelly beat George Tebeau of Kansas City to it by getting the services of Carl Lundgren, the ex-Cub pitcher. There was a tacit agreement existing whereby castoffs of Western major league teams went to the American Association and Eastern discards to the Powers Circuit, but the deal did not hold.

No team in the American League has taken such a slump over last year's showing than the St. Louis Browns. At this time in 1908 they were in second place and now they are low in the second division.

Since Fred Tenney joined the Giants it is almost a common occurrence for him to be put out of the game by the umpire for showing too much fighting spirit.

There is a lot of sentiment in ball players, even though one would not suspect it to see the athletes fighting for victories or tearing into an umpire on the slightest provocation. The other night the Milwaukee players coming up from Indianapolis to Columbus noticed an old lady, who was traveling from Richmond, Ind., to Pittsburg trying to get some comfort from the straight-back seat in the day coach. A collection was started among the warriors and a berth in the sleeper was purchased for the aged woman.

HAMILTON IS LEADING HITTER IN N. E. LEAGUE

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

TY COBB CLOSING UP ON COLLINS IN BATTING RACE

BILL HAMILTON BEST BATTER IN N. E. LEAGUE

After being obliged to take a back seat for two or three weeks, Billy Hamilton, the veteran Lynn manager, is back at the head of the hitters in the New England League this week. Yerkes, the new Worcester player, who jumped into the league at a fast clip, succumbed to the wiles of the pitchers during the past week and lost his proud position, although he is still stinging the ball at a lively clip. Hamilton had his trouble during the week, warming the bench a day or two because of umpire troubles, and he only got into three games. These only netted him one hit, but despite a drop from .345 to .335 in his average, he is still in front.

The slugger of the week was Sim Murch of Brockton. The big fellow landed for ten hits in seven games, jumping his average from .323 to .333, and putting him next to the front among the hitters. Murch, who was second to Bradley of Worcester in reaching the century mark in hits, heads the league this week in number of times he has landed safely, with 112 hits. Bradley is next with 107 hits.

Shaw of Worcester, who was third on the list a week ago, clings to the position by reason of some tall hitting during the week. He landed for seven hits in six games, and is traveling along only one point less than a week ago. His mark is .330.

The wonder of the league is the batting of Burkett's champions, who have come from the second division up to third place at a whirlwind clip. Worcester has five regular players who are hitting better than .300, in addition to having two more regulars who are among the leading twenty-five hitters of the league, and who are batting better than .280. Bradley is hitting for .324. Burkett, who is going faster every game, landed safely eight times in five games and is fifth on the list with .317; Russell is seventh with .306, and Logan eighth with .304. Yerkes is batting for .286, and Henry Rondeau, who slumped two weeks ago, is now hitting for .280. If the Worcesters were running bases like Lynn and Brockton, Billy Hamilton's leaders would be more scared of their chances for finishing first than they are now.

Aside from Hamilton, Lynn has one man hitting .300 or better. He is Pete Burg, whose figure is just .300. Page is hitting for .281, and Chick Autrey, who was secured from the Boston Nationals, has an average of .265.

Aside from Murch, Brockton's only representatives among the twenty-five leading hitters is Marty O'Toole, the pitcher, whose mark it .301, and Donovan, who is batting for .288.

Several players have passed the century mark in hits. Messenger of Fall River, who is hitting for .307, has 102, Barrows of New Bedford has 101, Donovan of Brockton 105, and Connaughton of Haverhill 102. Logan and Boardman, with 99 hits each, Courtney, Briggs and Russell, who each have 97, are liable to cross the line this week.

The Lowell tailenders have three men among the leading twenty-five hitters. Harold Danzig is back in the .300 class with .301, and Fluharty and Howard, who hit hard this week, are respectively twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth on the list, with marks of .262 and .257.

Lawrence has no man among the twenty-five leaders. New Bedford has but one, Lowell has three, Lynn four, Haverhill five, Brockton three, Fall River two and Worcester the remaining seven. The twenty-five leaders are:

Cooney of Haverhill, who has won six out of eight games, is the league's leading pitcher, with a percentage of victories of .750. Abbott of Lynn, who won both his games, is second with twenty victories in twenty-eight games, while O'Toole of Brockton has won nineteen and lost eight. Fullerton of Fall River is fifth, and Wood is tied with Finlayson of Brockton for sixth place. Tom Keady is Worcester's best pitcher. He has won six out of nine games. Friel of Haverhill, who led the twirlers for a time, is ninth on the list, and Hoff of Lynn is tenth. He is the only one of the ten leading pitchers whose defeats have reached double figures. Hoff has worked in thirty-one games, of which nineteen have been victories. The ten leaders are:

BREAKS HIS COLLARBONE.

CLIFTON, N. J., Aug. 9.—During the second heat of a motor-paced bicycle race, best two in three, ten-mile heats, at the Stadium, Jimmy Moran of Chelsea, Mass., was thrown heavily through the bursting of a tire, fracturing his collarbone. Elmer Collins of Boston won the race.

Just a Little Rough Place on the Road.—By Sidney Smith

DETROIT'S PENNANT FACE AS IT WAS-AND AS IT IS TO DAY

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

I RECKON THE SPORTS OF THE country are going some over that little New York society event of September 3, when Ketchel will attempt to put out the light of Boston's tar baby, eke Sammy Langford. The choicest seats selling at $30 a throw, and half of them gone already, as well as a special train to take over 300 Boston sports, who have signified their intention of attending the festivities, looks as if a whole bunch of interest has been stirred up. Although the bout goes but ten rounds, it will be a corker. That Ketchel is a very mussy person, but you can take it from me that Sam will keep him as busy as a man with the hives. It won't surprise me a little bit if Sam slips over a wallop that will cause a lot of these mushy rooters for "the white race" to yell for a champion to pry him loose from the middleweight title.

WHAT A RELIEF IT WILL BE IF Jeffries and Johnson ever do get together and settle it. I get a raft of letters every day or so asking me which one really is the champion, and why. Here is my dope, and it goes for all of you: Johnson is the champion. Why? Because Jeffries retired from the ring, announced that he would never fight again, and that the winner of the Hart-Root fight was the best man to take up his burden, and should be considered as having a clear title to the job. Hart pummelled the tar out of Root, and was later trimmed by Tommy Burns. Johnson licked Burns, and there you are. Johnson is the champion. Of course, Jeff recently declared he is still the champion, and denies that he hailed Hart as the winner of the title, but five years is a long time to wait to deny a fact that was emblazoned in every paper in the country. He may win back the title, and I hope, if they ever do meet, he'll knock the brainless knob off the dinge, but he's got it to do yet.

WELL, WELL, I'M GETTING ALONG. I have been asked to be a real live prize fighter's manager. My principal is Caramello Lippo of Boston, who challenges any boxer in the world to mix with him for the paper weight title. I printed here the other day that Young Friedman of Yonkers had challenged any 95-pound boy, and the "Caramel Kid" came right back, as I know he would. Here is young Lippo's letter:

> Straight Dope, Boston American:
> Dear Sir: I would like to get on a match with Sammy Friedman of Yonkers, as I see he has challenged any 95-pound boy. If arrangements can be made please take care of it for me. Yours truly,
> YOUNG LIPPO, Charlestown, Mass.

Now if we can get the Yonkers kid to come across and the Armory Club will stage the bout, we have a chance to see a battle for the world's title right here in Boston. Come on, you Yonkers bunch. There'll be no quibble over weight, purse division, distance, time of combat or anything else. After we get through with Friedman we're going to have a talk with Sam Berger. Our man can fight at 84 pounds, and if Jeff will come down to weight we'll take him on.

I HEREBY DECLARE THE GAME law out on these punsters who are sending me bad jokes based on the names of ball players. In a moment of mental aberration I printed one, and since then my mail has been deluged with them. One of the latest, and also one of the rottenest, is from Mike Gustafson of West Medford, who comes along with a story of Fred Tenney dropping a throw in a game in Memphis, and McGraw asking: "Can't Tennesee?" You ought to take something for that, Mike. Still, you may be young enough to outgrow it if you quit right away and try to lead an upright life.

EVERY ONCE IN A WHILE A STORY bobs up of a new manager about to be engaged for the Doves, and I am inclined to think they come from a bunch of knockers who are always ready to kick the under dog. Billy Hamilton is the latest one named, but, take it from me, there is nothing doing. The Doves are playing great ball now, in spite of the fact that they are not winning games, and Harry Smith is doing as well as anyone can with the men he has or can get. A study of the games against the Cubs and Pirates leads me to believe that the Doves will win a whole lot of contests between now and the end of the season, if they play like they are doing now. I'm from Missouri on a proposition of Billy Hamilton or anyone else doing more with the present club than Harry Smith is accomplishing.

JOHN C. CARR, THOMPSON SQUARE, Charlestown.—I answered your query about Jack Reed last Saturday. He has not been at Holy Cross during the past few years.

> Straight Dope, Boston American:
> Will you please decide this bet? A bets B that Boston will win Thursday, not knowing that two games would be played that day. Both Boston and Detroit won. Who wins the bet? Yours respectfully,
> R. J. FIDLER.

The first game played is the regularly scheduled game, but if I were you I would call off the bet. And listen to this: Quit betting on baseball. Gamble your heads off on anything else, but keep off the only clean professional sport.

THOMAS DON SMITH, 17 MASCOT street, Dorchester.—I am unable to print your interesting contribution on the Jeff-Johnson affair, chiefly on account of its length. Condense what you want to say in about half the space, or even less, and I'll be glad to give you a hearing. Please write on one side of your paper only, and, for goodness sake, don't sign your name with a "Mr." before it. It's bad form.

HERE'S A CHANCE THAT SHOULD not be overlooked. The Walcott manager and Mr. Shea will have to get busy on this or turn over on his side:

> George's Mills, N. H., Aug. 6, 1909.
> Straight Dope, Boston American:
> I, as manager of the Roger Walcott A. A., the claimant of the amateur championship of Massachusetts, wish to take exceptions to a statement, in the column of yesterday, made by Mr. Shea of the Eagle A. A. He stated that his team had bested mine. The Eagle A. A. may have been victorious over the Rogers last year, but the two teams have not met as yet this season. If Mr. Shea can prove that his team is as strong as he claims, the Roger Walcott A. A. will accommodate them with a game and show them what "class" really is.
> FRANK W. JOHNSON, Mattapan, Mass.

E. H. S., CAPE COTTAGE ME.—BE more explicit in regard to the information you want of the Detroit and Chicago games in 1907 and I'll try to look it up for you.

> Straight Dope, Boston American:
> How many games has Reulbach, of the Cubs, won straight this season, and when will he pitch in Boston?
> CUB ROOTER.

Reulbach has won the last thirteen games he pitched. The Cubs come here August 20 for a series of four games, but as I'm no clairvoyant I can't tell you when Reulbach will pitch.

DOVE FAN:—THE DOVES RETURN to Boston on August 17, opening on that date with Brooklyn. They remain at home until September 2.

> Straight Dope, Boston American:
> Can a batter be taken out of the box after having a strike called on him, and can he play again in the same game?
> A. D., Roxbury.

Substitute batter can be put in at any time, but first man cannot return to the game.

> Straight Dope, Boston American:
> When a game is a tie and the pitchers are changed, which man gets credit for winning or losing? Please answer to decide an argument.
> G. L. C.

The second pitcher, if the bases are empty when he goes in.

> The Nonantum Boys' Club, with a record of forty-seven victories in less than two seasons, are playing in the 18-year-old class this year. They have won eighteen games this year and would like to hear from the strongest team in the state.
> CHARLES CHASSON, Mgr.,
> 22 Faxon street, Newton.

MAJOR TEAMS GO TO COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9.—If the plan that Dan Long, secretary of the Pacific Coast League, has under way is carried out, two picked teams representing the best players in the American and National Leagues will play games in San Francisco, Los Angeles and other cities along the coast for six weeks this Fall.

Long's idea is to have the teams come to California immediately after the closing of the Coast League season, which will be October 31, and to have them play for six weeks.

"Negotiations have not gone far enough so we can call it a certainty," declared Long, "but I am in correspondence, and think it will be carried out. It looks as if the coast is ripe for a project of this kind and will give good support."

THREE WEEKS SHOOTING AT CAMP PERRY

CAMP PERRY RAANGE, O., Aug. 9.—Everything is in readiness for three weeks of shooting on this range, the largest in the United States and destined to show the finest rifle shooting ever seen in this country within the next few weeks.

On Thursday the matches of the Ohio State Rifle Association, which are open only to the Ohio National Garud, will begin continuing until Friday evening. Saturday the joint matches of the Ohio and the Department of the Lakes Rifle Associations will open with the Hale Cup match. Sunday will be a day of rest, but on Monday comes the Catrow Cup match. Tuesday the Dupont Tyro match with $400 prize money divided among the first forty-three competitors will be shot. Wednesday, August 18, will see the Herrick trophy match and on Thursday the Governor's match.

A match that is attracting attention because of its unusual character is the novelty skirmish match in which competitors will be started with fifty rounds of ammunition and will skirmish from 600 to 200 yards, making the usual stops at 600, 500, 400, 350, 300 and 200 yards. At each firing point the targets will be displayed at unknown intervals of not less than ten seconds nor more than thirty-five seconds. Each competitor can fire as many times as he pleases at each range, but the usual commands of commence and cease firing will not be given, the appearance and disappearance of the targets governing the firing.

KLING TO BOSS DODGERS 1910

Chicago, Aug. 9.—The deal by which Johnny Kling is to become manager of the Brooklyn club is being matured here at present, though neither Ebbetts nor C. W. Murphy will give definite information. Kling is to join the club next spring, if the arrangements go through. Price alone is holding back a consummation.

President Ebbetts when asked why he did not grab Kling said: "I do not believe in swapping horses in mid-stream. Lumley is doing very well with the club. He is far better than Hanlon or Donovan, and of late he has been aggressive as anybody would demand.

"I have had a dozen men suggested to me for the job of manager, but I am satisfied with Lumley. The boys like him, and if it had not been for the series of accidents I believe Lumley would have passed St. Louis flying."

LEADING TENNIS PLAYERS CONTEST

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., Aug. 9.—The leading tennis players of the country competed to-day on the courts of the Meadow Club in their annual tuning-up tournament preliminary to the national championship, which follows next week on the courts of the Casino at Newport, R. I. The list this year seeking the laurels held by William J. Clothier includes William A. Larned, Robert D. Wrenn, Karl H. Behr, Richard H. Palmer, William D. Bourne, Gustave F. Touchard, Theodore R. Pell, Walter Merrill Hall, and altogether almost fifty of the ranking men.

THREE GOOD BOUTS IN N. Y. TO-NIGHT

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—To-night at the Bedford A. C., Brooklyn, Manager Shortel offers three ten-round battles. In the windup Paddy Kline of Newark and Kid Stinger of the East Side will furnish some milling.

"Knockout" Jack O'Donald will try to stop Harry Stone, another East Side idol.

Young Joe Wagner, who also hails from the East Side, will try conclusions with Yankee Schwartz, the Philadelphia crack.

15-MILE RACE AT FALL RIVER

FALL RIVER, Aug. 9.—The promoters of the recent inter-city Marathon in this city are endeavoring to arrange a 15-mile match race between Al Nash of Philadelphia, the Indian runner, and Al Raines next Saturday in this city. Favorably reply to the proposition is expected from Nash to-day.

A Want Advt. Is Often the Road to Fortune.

HYLAND AND FRAYNE IN FINE TRIM FOR BOUT

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9.—That fight fight fans have discovered Dave Cockrell and Jack Perkins' new training quarters over at the Emeryville race course, where Dick Hyland and Jimmy Regan are training, was proven conclusively to-day. The place was packed with spectators. Regan is training for his fight with Monte Attell before the Oakland Wheel men next Wednesday night, the winner of which bout is to fight Percy Seve of Seattle before the Mission A. C. on the 20th.

Hyland is to appear in the main event of the Mission Club show together with Johnny Frayne. Their bout, like that of Seve and the winner of the Attell-Regan bout, will be a twenty round journey. Hyland boxed four rounds with Peter Jackson to-day punched the light hand bags and skipped rope. He weighed 138 pounds. Every morning Dick circles the Emeryville Race track several times.

Out at Millett's, where Frayne and Attell are campaigning, the spectators were as numerous as commuters. Frayne boxed with Johnny Loftus, his trainer, and Monte Attell. Both boys say they are feeling fine, and look it, too.

Should Billy Papke refuse the offer of the North End Club to box Frank Mantel Labor Day, Sam Fitzpatrick, manager of Mantel, says he will accommodate Jack Twin Sullivan of Boston with a return match.

Fitzpatrick said: "The North End Club has wired an offer of a $2,500 guarantee to meet Mantel in September. We should know what Bill intends doing in a couple of days. If he refuses to accept the offer I stand willing to give Jack Twin Sullivan another chance with my man.

"I will bet Sullivan $500 on the result, just as he says he is willing to do, and will sign articles for Mantel to weigh 158 pounds four hours before. If Sullivan is dissatisfied with the Sacramento decision we will not refuse him a chance to square accounts if he can."

BAT NELSON LOSES TITLE

EXTRA, EXTRA. Bat Nelson has lost his lightweight championship. The great and only Battler, far famed for his ability to stand the gaff, has succumbed at last. The new lightweight champ is Annette, Kellerman, the Australian Mermaid.

Annette copped the Bat a couple of straight lefts and one right-hand opperent on his manly jaw over in New York yesterda yat the newsboys' benefit and sent the Dane down for the count. This was one of the star attracions at he benefit for he newsies, which netted $1400.

Bat was not wholly massacred, altaough severely beaten up, and by use of much heartshorn and ammonia, they revived the Battler sufficiently to permit him to give sparring exhibitions with Leach Cross and Billy Herrmann.

Annette Kellerman tried to teach the Dane the interesting game of diabolo, at which she is one of the best in the country, but the lightweight wonder was unable to get both hands going at the same time and had to give it up.

RACING BEGUN AT WOONSOCKET TO-DAY

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Aug. 9.—The second race meeting here this season will open at the Woonsocket Agricultural Park this afternoon, and promises to even outshine the very successful one held last month. Over 200 horses have been entered and many have already arrived at the track.

Among the speedy ones are several winners of first money in various meets this season. Horses are entered from all over New England and a number from Pennsylvania, New York and Florida.

SONDERS GET LAST TUNING THIS WEEK

MARBLEHEAD, Aug. 9.—This is Marblehead week in yachting circles with races by the Eastern, Boston and Corinthian yacht clubs. The week opens to-day with open races by the Eastern for boats of forty six-foot rating and under. To-morrow will be open race of the Boston club. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will see the mid-Summer series of the Corinthian club and Saturday the same club will hold open races.

During the Corinthian series will be sailed the matches between dories of the Portland Yacht Club and the Massachusetts Bay Dory Racing Association for the Walter E. Knight trophy. These contests will be sailed in the morning.

While it will be a great week for all classes it will be very important for the sonders as it is the final week of tuning up for the elimination trials, which start August 16, in which a selection of three will be made to meet the Germans in the international series which start August 30.

Eight of the leading yacht clubs on the Atlantic Coast will be represented in the trial races, while seven prominent yacht designers have given much thought and study to the development of these yachts.

The following are the entries for the American trial races:

ETERNITY

By JOSEPH O'BRIEN

I SANG my love when the stars were cold,
And gray in the mist around them.
I shall sing my song with a heart as bold
When the mist again has found them.

When the gold of her hair was yet to be
And the light of her eyes was fire,
The spark that was meant for the soul of me
Was thrilled with a sweet desire.

So I came from the heart of the inmost run
Of the wheeling worlds and found her;
And the feeble spark grew a blazing sun
In the light that flamed around her.

I sang my love when the stars grew bright
And sprang from the mist in splendor.
I shall sing my love with a heart as light
When the stars to the mist surrender.

Our Own Power the Best

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

Copyright, 1909, American-Journal-Examiner.

ALMOST every man and woman whose name is known to the public in any prominent way, whether in the arts, professions or trades, receives letters from ambitious boys and girls asking for aid to obtain an education.

When no aid is given, the applicants feel that successful people are selfish and unkind, and imagine themselves misused and neglected by a cruel world.

All their failures thereafter to make a place for themselves they place at the door of those who could, but would not aid them.

Last year I read an account of a poor girl who was ambitious for an education. The story of this girl interested me so greatly that I clipped it from the press, and to-day I read it over again. Here it is:

"A Missouri girl, born and reared on a been admitted to the Missouri bar, and has won scholarship awards and other distinctions in practically every year of her schooling.

"Her latest victory brings her the annual William Braun prize of more than $2,500, the only provision being that she must use the money travelling in countries where efforts to encourage education have been made. Not later than next August Miss Sturtevant will start on this tour, which is to occupy at least a year.

"Ten years ago Mabel Sturtevant was an ordinary Missouri country schoolgirl, farm and educated almost entirely by her own efforts, has been awarded the Braun prize as the best student of the universities of America and Europe, and will start the coming Summer on a tour of the world with the money her victory has given her. She is Mabel E. Sturtevant, of Brookfield, twenty-six years old.

"Miss Sturtevant is a graduate of the University of Missouri, secretary of the National Teachers and Students' Association, has travelled for a season in Europe, attending one of the rural schools in Linn County. Her parents were poor, and the daughter had no exceptional advantage except her ability for labor and a consuming desire to excel."

Now what this girl did any boy or girl can do if the same burning desire is in the heart—the same unswerving ambition to succeed animates the mind.

The Power Within Us

It is more and more a wonder to me that our churches have for nearly two thousand years failed to preach what New Thought is telling the world to-day. That "As a man thinketh so is he, and that the Kingdom of Heaven is within." It is this consciousness of the within and all the power it represents, which enables human beings to realize their desires.

We want to stop leaning on any one; we want to stop asking favors, advice or assistance; and we want to regard any offers of help only as loans, which we will repay if we accept them.

Unless we recognize the duty of developing ourselves from the powers and possibilities given us by the Creator and of finding the way ourselves, we can never profit greatly by any assistance given us by others. "I came not into the world to be ministered unto, but to minister," is a good motto for every ambitious girl.

This Missouri girl of poor parents, attending school in a country place, with no influence, no money, no help from without, yet found the way to exceptional opportunities for advancement.

She found it through the kingdom within herself.

It is the force and power of your desire, together with your efforts, made in accordance with this desire, which will bring you results.

No one else can bring them to you.

If you think despondent, envious, jealous thoughts, if you believe you were born to fail and to meet with bad luck, if you wait for others to help you, you are planning a life of misfortunes for yourself.

I do not believe this Missouri girl found time to envy others, or to indulge in gloomy thoughts, or to bemoan her fate.

You Are What You Think

She gave all her thoughts to constructive ideas.

She used every brain cell to the best advantage.

We are all given a lot of raw material to convert into active, working brain cells. If we think of beautiful things—sculpture, music, poetry, good actions, great deeds, unselfish lives—we are developing the qualities which will produce these effects in later life. If we dwell instead on the sorrowful and ugly and painful things in the world, we are developing the unpleasant side of our natures and inviting events to materialize in accordance.

I know a woman who became panic-stricken with fear lest she had an incurable malady. The thought haunted her day and night for months, and during that time from the most unexpected places and at the most unexpected times came people into her horizon who were victims of this very malady.

Her thought brought them.

The woman finally realized that she was a victim of foolish fear and nothing else, and all her symptoms of disease vanished with her fears.

If you think and talk failure and poverty you will meet people who have failed and who are poverty stricken. If you persistently think and talk success and achievement, you will meet with people who have achieved; if you think and talk health—and love and happiness, you will meet those who radiate these qualities and you will radiate them.

This law never fails.

So train your mind to dwell upon the kind of person and event which you desire to be and have expressed in your life. Read about the things you long for; in the midst of poverty and sickness imagine opulence and health; in the midst of squalor and discord, think beauty and harmony.

Somewhere they exist, and every thought is a step toward them.

We will be what we will to be. Lincoln and Benjamin Franklin did not ask for aid to secure an education. Why should you?

PROVEN!

SOME visitors who were being shown over a pauper lunatic asylum inquired of their guide what method was employed to discover when the inmates were sufficiently recovered to leave.

"Well," replied he, "you see, it's this way. We have a big trough of water, and we turns on the faucet. We leave it running and tell 'em to bail out the water with pails until they've emptied the trough."

"How does that prove it?" asked one of the visitors.

"Well," said the guide, "them as ain't idiots turns off the faucet."

Priscilla

By HANK

I'M married and I love my wife,
(Let that be understood)
In her I found an ideal mate,
Sweet-tempered, pretty, good.
But I can name another one
Who lives within our villa,
Who's found a way to reach my heart—
Priscilla.

I seldom see her smiling face,
But lo! my fondest wishes
Are granted by Priscilla in
The choicest dainty dishes.
I love my wife, I said before,
Her hand directs life's tiller,
But when I eat my thoughts are of Priscilla.

YOU'RE GOOD ENOUGH FOR ME!
MERLE JOHNSON

Priscilla sure is a daisy.

She never went to cooking school;
But if those schools could reach her
I'd bet my life they couldn't find
A more efficient teacher.
Again, I say, I love my wife,
But I could never drill her
To reach my heart the same way as Priscilla.

When desk is closed and business done,
And I've been working hard,
Although I love my wife my thoughts
Will travel kitchenward.
It's then (although I love my wife),
Not all the gold and "siller"
That's in this world could ever buy
Priscilla.

Up-to-Date Jokes

The oddest, the most momentous associations oftentimes attach themselves to the most trifling things. Thus, at a dinner, the hostess said to a sour-faced man on her left.

"May I help you to some of the boiled rice, Mr. Smith?"

"Rice? No, thank you; no rice for me." Smith answered vehemently. "It is associated with the worst mistake of my life."

The Doctor—Mrs. Briggs has sent for me to go and see her boy, and I must go without the loss of a moment.

His Wife—Why such a tearing hurry? What is the matter with the boy?

The Doctor—I don't know, but Mrs. Briggs has a book on "What to Do Before the Doctor Comes," and I must hurry up before she has time to do it.

'What Are Girls Made Of?'---By Nell Brinkley

What are little girls made of?
Sugar and spice,
And everything nice,
And that's what little girls are made of.

NOT all, sure. But we aren't meaning the ones of the "snails and puppy-dog tails." We're meaning the lendid woman-girl that a man means hen he absently tells his dog: "I'm goin' get married some day, Spotty, old chap" —the girl that—the girl you love! That's the one.

She was moulded and shaped in a fortten garden one day. And Love was the ulptor.

Old gardens are the haunted workshops Love, the builder. Whenever you peer etween the gates that close one in, or p down the idle walks through the reen stillness, you may know the Masterorker is here, patting together the soul ad body of some damosel for the delight ad the distraction of some Man.

Do you remember the first man when e first woman was given to him? She was made of every fair thing in the world, from the slim grace of a reed in a lily-pond to the luminous silver right out of the Mother-moon. He tried hard to keep her, but she teased him to death, she laughed at him, and she cried whenever she wanted anything, and she had always to be helped. So he took her back. And he said sadly to God, "Please take her back; she makes my life miserable."

So God took her back.

In a little minute the man hurried back. He wanted her again. He missed her soft ways and her laughter and her caresses and nestling and her praise and her love. So God gave her again to him.

AND—in another minute here came the man! He couldn't stand her, and please to take her back again! But God shrugged His shoulders and said He was tired and would not!

So the man cried and wailed, "What shall I do? I can't live either with her or without her!"

Do you think it would have been like that if Love hadn't made her? For he made her of some things that we can't even dream of. They have no name.

Some things we know and can call. All in little jars, they are in a little row where Love may stoop and take a pinch of this and a fistful of that.

He starts with the wax of a squillion flower-petals. That's his block—his mass of shapeless marble. And as he chips her out and her face grows and her feet, he works in his magic witch-stuff out of his jars in a row with his divine little wizard thumb and fingers. Jars of Sweet Temper, and Tact, and Tenderness, and Grace, and Changefulness, and Steadfastness, and Loyalty, and a Silver-tongue, of Rose-leaves and the Music of Pan and the Mystery of fire—and many more.

"Beauty was born of the world's desire
For the wandering water, the wandering fire.
Under the arch of her hurrying feet
She has trodden a world full of Bittersweet."

And a woman was born of Love.

NELL BRINKLEY.

My Wife's Gone to the Country, Hurray! Hurray!

New Words to the Old Melody

By IRVING BERLIN

One of the authors of the original song)

I.

LAST week Brown got a letter,
'twas from his wifey dear,
She said, "Please send me money, or I must come home,
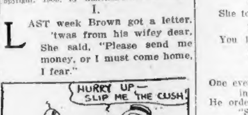
I fear."



HURRY UP—
SLIP ME THE CUSH!
G.M.

So Brown rushed to a neighbor,
those hurried words to say,
"Don't stop to ask me questions, I need money right away.

CHORUS.—
"My wife's gone to the country—
Hurray—Hurray!
She thought it best—I need the rest—that's why she went away;
She took the children with her—
Hurray!—Hurray!
You know I'd do as much for you—my wife's gone away."

II.

One evening Brown was thirsty, so in a near cafe,
He ordered from the waiter there,
"Some lager, right away;"
The waiter knew old Browney, and asked him for the can,
But Browney answered, "Never mind, a glass will do, old man.

CHORUS.—
"My wife's gone to the country—
Hurray—Hurray!
She thought it best—I need the rest—that's why she went away;
She took the children with her—
Hurray!—Hurray!
Just bring one more—and then bring four—my wife's gone away."

III.

A friend of Brown's got married—
Brown called around that day—
He only called to wish him luck,
then wish himself away;
The music started playing the wedding march so dear,
Brown marched up to the bridegroom, just to whisper in his ear:

CHORUS.—
"My wife's gone to the country—
Hurray—Hurray!
She thought it best—I need the rest—that's why she went away;
She took the children with her—
Hurray!—Hurray!
Ring on; ring on, ye wedding bells—my wife's gone away.

BALLAD OF AUTUMN

By ANDREW LANG

WE built a castle in the air,
In Summer weather, you and I;
The wind and sun were in your hair—
Gold hair against a sapphire sky.
When Autumn came, with leaves that fly
Before the storm, across the plain,
You fled from me with scarce a sign—
My love returns no more again!

The windy lights of Autumn flare;
I watch the moon-lit sails go by,
I marvel how men toil and fare—
The weary business that they ply!
Their voyaging is vanity,
And fairy gold is all their gain;
And all the winds of Winter cry,
"My love returns no more again!"

Here, in my castle of Despair,
I sit alone with memory;
The wind-fed wolf has left his lair
To keep the outcast company.
The brooding owl he hoots hard by,
"The hare shall kindle on the hearth stane."
So runs the ancient prophecy—
My love returns no more again!

ENVOY.

Lady, my home until I die
Is here where youth and hope were slain.
They flit, the ghosts of our July,
My love returns no more again!

What Are You Afraid Of?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHEN I was a little girl I was afraid of the dark. So much so that if, by any chance, the night light which burned just outside my door went out I would waken with a frightened cry. Even now I have no great love of the dark, and always like to see a glimmer of light if I awaken.

Every woman is afraid of something, ranging in magnitude from a mouse to what her neighbor thinks of her.

It is important that your neighbor think well of you, and it is absolutely in your own hands that she does or does not.

It is foolish to be afraid of mice and the dark, but it is wise to be afraid of the world's criticism if you are not leading the right sort of life and doing your duty.

You do not need the world's criticism to know that you are not doing the right thing. Your own heart and sense are the truest of critics and censors.

Each Man Has a Duty.

I sometimes hear foolish people exclaim, "I do not care what others think; my life is my own, to live as I please." And yet those are the very people who cannot stand criticism; they want to do as they please and then go scot free.

Your life is not your own to live as you please, for every human being owes a duty to his fellow being and is responsible as to how his life affects others.

That is the thing to be afraid of, that you are not fulfilling your duty to mankind and making the best of your life and opportunities.

Don't be afraid of such foolish trifles as what your neighbors think about your wearing the same hat for two seasons.

Some Foolish Kinds of Fear

And, if you are convinced that you are doing the right thing in following a certain course, do not be afraid to continue on your way.

For instance, do not be afraid to refuse intoxicants for fear people will think you queer. I know that many a girl has taken a glass of beer simply because she was afraid that her companions would think her "green" if she refused.

The "greener" a young girl is in matters of that kind the better off she is.

Sometimes young men spend more money than they can afford because they are afraid that they will be considered stingy if they spend less. That is a very foolish form of fear and one which is sure to end in a load of debt.

Try and stand in wholesome awe of the things that you ought to be afraid of, but be a soldier where the foolish fears are concerned. Remember that you are "the captain of your soul" and that you alone can steer it safely through life's perils and fears.

Advice to the Lovelorn

RATHER LATE IN THE DAY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Some time ago I was introduced to a young man, who, it seems to me, asked for the introduction.

I treated him very coolly, and when he asked when he could see me, I answered him abruptly and said, "Oh, any time at all."

I showed him no attention whatsoever, because at that time he called on a girl several doors down from my house.

Now, several weeks ago I met him again, and he asked if he could call and take me out.

Well, I have an older brother who objects to my having any of the boys call, because he says I am only a "fickle kid" of sixteen.

I told this to my new acquaintance and he suggested that I meet him at the park.

The time came, I backed out, so consequently I broke the engagement—something which I have never done before.

Well, last Friday at noon I saw this young man, but he did not see me; and now, strange to say, I feel sorry for what I have done, and I like him better and more than my own friend.

Now, Dear Miss Fairfax, kindly lend me your advice in deciding how I should go about this, as I love the boy, and it is impossible to ask him to the house.

T. B.

IT is rather late in the day to discover that you like him, and I am afraid that you will find it hard to get him back. Greet him cordially the first time you meet, and that will give him a chance to renew the friendship. If you are only sixteen it is too bad that you should bother your head about boys for some time to come.

NOT MUCH OF A MAN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl and have kept company three years with a young man who claims to be very jealous of me. I have given him no reason for this. Miss Fairfax, kindly give me your advice what to do.

When we have a little quarrel he never speaks to me first, but always says he cannot give in to me. Sunday he got angry over a trifle, which was not at all necessary, and I have not seen him for a week, but heard he was drinking. He says he does this to forget me. Miss Fairfax, do you think he does right by acting this way, and do you think he loves me very much if he cannot give in to me once in a while?

ANXIOUS.

NO, I don't think he does right, and if he were much of a man he would not choose such a cowardly method of making you give in. I not not believe you would find much happiness as the wife of such a man, and if I were you I would waste no more time on him.

When She Talks

By KENNETT HARRIS

SAYS he, "Although
I'm sometimes heard,
She has, you know,
The final word.
No slight or slur
I mean to cast.
It's up to her
To get the last.

I have the right,
I hope, to speak,
But though I might Declaim a week
With force and wit,
I've had to learn
That when I quit,
She takes her turn.

Going—going—always going.

I prove I'm right,
But what's the use?
It gives her quite
As much excuse.
A woman will
Just have her way.
The last word still
She has to say."

I said: "Your cry
Sounds most absurd.
I'd not deny
The final word.
My wife speaks fast
And frequent. I'm Jawed first and last
And all the time."

How High Did the Mercury Jump?

"SIZZLING snakes! How the mercury jumps," said Squire Jones. "Accordin' to them there fluctuations it has travelled 20 degrees during the day, but gained only 2½ degrees.

Now, if the Squire tells the truth, what is the highest mark the thermometer could possibly have registered during those 20 degrees of travel?

SAD DISCOVERIES

WHENEVER Lysander John Appleton lies on the lounge and shuts his eyes his folks imagine he is asleep and begin to tell things. He learned recently while trying to rest that his wife had charged a $25 hat to him for which she was paying on the installment plan out of the money supposed to go for the table. The shock almost made him open his eyes. He also learned that his wife was conniving with Daysey Mayme in a love affair of which he disapproved. "Your father," said Mrs. Lysander John, "is an old fogy." Lysander John advises all men who seek happiness to take their naps at the office. It is his experience that women folks can never wait till a man is sound asleep in their desire to begin employing themselves by telling things.—Atchison Globe.

CUPID GROWS BIG CROP OF FALL BRIDES

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Judging from the number of engagements being announced, Autumn weddings will be more numerous this year than ever. Cupid is certainly reaping his harvest and each week has a fine big list of conquests to his credit. The latest and most important engagement is that just announced of Miss Louise Clark, daughter of Mrs. George J. Engleman, to Dr. Rufus E. Fort of Nashville, Tenn.

Miss Clark, who is a prime favorite in her set here, is a sister of J. Dudley Clark who married Cornelia Andrew, the daughter of the late Governor Andrew and a niece of Nathaniel Bayard and John E. T. Thayer and of Dr. George O. Clark of Commonwealth avenue. She was one of the most attractive of the younger girls at the Beck tea on Class day when she was in a party including her mother and her fiance. She is a strikingly pretty girl of medium height and handsome brunette coloring. The wedding will take place in October at the beautiful Summer home of the prospective bride's mother at Framingham.

Another betrothal of interest is that of Miss Florence Louise Lyman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse P. Lyman of Beacon street, to Robert Shurtleff Wallace of Fitchburg, and the last of their three children to become engaged. The first wedding in the family will be that of Frederick Wallace and Miss Rice of Cambridge, N. Y., which will take place in the early Autumn and which will be closely followed by that of Miss Lyman and Robert Wallace.

One of the most important musical events of the Summer will be the concert to be given Friday afternoon, August 27 at the summer home of the Samuel J. Mixters at Swampscott in aid of the Grenfell hospital in Labrador. The concert will begin at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and such artists as Mrs. Clara Sexton, Miss Marie Nichols, Miss Isabelle T. Moore, Joseph Dwight and Felix Fox will be heard.

The women's tennis doubles began today at the Swimming Club courts in Bar Harbor. The list of entries is a long one and includes Miss Elizabeth Porter, Miss V. Greene, Mrs. Morton L. Fearey, Miss Sallie Lawrence, Mrs. John K. Mitchell, Miss K. Davis, Mrs. Natalie Schenck, Miss Breeze, Miss M. L. Emmett, Miss L. Emmett, Miss M. Perrin and Miss Susie Dabney.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Dixey are entertaining Richard Nickerson and Miss Ruth Nickerson of Boston at Tanglewood, their delightful Summer place in Lenox.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Fearing, Jr., of Boston will spend several weeks in Newport at the residence of Mr. Fearing's father, Colonel George R. Fearing, whose residence is in Narragansett avenue. The Fearings arrived to-day.

The officers of the Naval Training Station give their weekly roller skating party this afternoon. Roller skating at the station is proving one of the most popular diversions among the younger set and brings out large numbers each week.

John L. Saltonstall of Boston was the guests over the week end of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Jay at their Summer home in Newport.

Senator and Mrs. George Peabody Wetmore will leave Newport to-morrow to return to Washington. Miss Edith Wetmore has gone to East Sachuset, where she will be the guest of Miss Lovering, daughter of Representative Lovering.

Andrew Robeson of Boston is being entertained this week by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Colford, Jr., at their home in Newport.

W. A. Gardner of Boston is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Howard G. Cushing, who are spending part of the season in Newport.

Charles Lawrence of Paris arrived in Lenox yesterday. He will be entertained by Charles Lanier at his Summer residence, Allen Winden.

Charles Hayden of Boston is one of the guests of Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont at Marble House in Newport.

Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth will not make their appearance in Beverly Farms for a week or so, as they left Washington yesterday for a trip to Hot Springs, Va.

Mrs. Robert Winthrop is entertaining considerably in Lenox these days. Two of her guests are Mrs. Paul Dahlgren and Miss Romona Dahlgren of Newport.

Senator Elihu Root and his daughter, Mrs. U. S. Grant, 3d., have gone to the Root Summer residence at Clinton, N. Y. Lieutenant Grant will join them shortly. Since their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Grant have made their home in Brookline, but Brookline is to know them no more as permanent residents, for Mrs. Root has been in Washington for some time looking for a house for next season. Lieutenant Grant has recently been appointed to a position at the capitol, and he and his family will consequently make their home there the greater part of the year.

MAKING OF CHOWDER NOT A LOST ART

If John T. Hicks ever thought that the making of clam chowder was a lost art in New England he has been disillusioned by this time, for nobody every dreamed there were so many different ways of doing it until bushels of replies began coming into the BOSTON AMERICAN office in response to Mr. Hicks's appeal for one good recipe. He offered $5 for the best, and the AMERICAN offered $5 for the next best. Here are some of the replies:

THIS ALWAYS PLEASES.

A chowder that always pleases. Try it. Take three slices of fat pork and fry to a crisp; slice three onions and fry brown; put in a large kettle and slice about twelve potatoes very thin and cover over with boiling water; season with one tablespoonful of salt and one-half teaspoon of pepper; when potatoes are most done, put in one pint of clams or quohaugs and cut up small; cook about fifteen minutes, then add two slices of lemon, a dash of nutmeg, celery and salt; cook one quart of tomatoes in a separate kettle, put in a pinch of saleratus and let boil. When the tomatoes come to a boil, put into the large kettle and let all come to a good boil. When ready to serve, remove from fire and add one-half pint of cream. Serve with crackers.

MISS ADINA BELOIN.
No. 15 Smith street, Riverside, R. I.

IS CONSIDERED GOOD.

My chowder is considered good by all that have tasted it. Use the following ingredients: One-fourth bucket of clams, four slices pork (good size), one onion, five large potatoes, one quart milk, pepper and crackers. Get one-quarter bucket fresh clams and wash at shore if possible, if not then at home in several waters. Put on stove with no water (they make their own). Steam three minutes (if longer they will be tough; pick over, cut heads and dark-brown part from stomach. Wash again in clear, cold water; try out pork fat; add half onion; let brown, not burn; put clam water over fire, add potatoes cut in one-fourth slices, the other half of onion, cut fine, and pork fat strained. Cook until potatoes are soft. Remove to back of stove; add clams, one quart of milk, pinch of pepper and crackers if you like.

MRS. F. M. EDWARDS.
No. 18 Wibird street, Quincy.

FORTY-FIVE-YEAR-OLD RECIPE.

Here is a chowder recipe which I got in Boston forty-five years or more ago, Mr. Hicks. Does that go back to the time of your mother? I always use the quohaugs because we like them best. One and a half dozen good-sized quohaugs, washed clean with cloth. Then put in pan of cold water with a big handful of Indian meal thrown over them; let stand to rest for two or three hours when they will open and eat. Lift each one gently; use dull, heavy knife, and you can open easily, holding them over a dish so as not to lose the liquor or juice. Then take eight good sized potatoes, old ones are best; pare and chop the size of dice; three large onions chopped fine. While doing this have six slices, large ones, of salt pork, lean and fat, frying a nice brown; chop the pork fine, keep the fat fried out; add later. Put on kettle with two quarts cold water; add potatoes, little salt and pepper and onions. Let boil until almost tender, then add quohaugs and pork and the liquor; boil good and hard or slowly on back of stove if not in a hurry, but cook well. When ready to take up add one quart of milk and just let come to a boil, or add the milk hot, only don't boil after milk is in; break Boston crackers up small and drop in just before serving. It is even better next day warmed up. Season to taste, plenty of pepper.

DUXBURY CLAM CHOWDER.

Here is the real old-fashioned Duxbury chowder recipe. Take a quart clams and wash, separate stomachs and chop fine the other part less. Try out four or five slices of fat salt pork cut in dice, take out scraps, cut two good sized onions up fine and three or four potatoes in thin slices and put all into the fat and cover with water, put in clams and cook till potatoes are soft and put in milk and let that heat up, not boil, then serve with hard crackers.

Legal and Public Notices.

Stable and Boat-House.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts Charles River Basin Commission.

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Charles River Basin Commission, 367 Boylston street, Boston, Mass., until 2:30 o'clock, P. M., of THURSDAY, August 19, 1909, for the construction of a stable and a boat house, which are to be built on a lot of land in the City of Cambridge, bounded by Bridge street, Commercial avenue, Lechmere canal and the forebay of the sluices in the Charles River Dam. The stable will be a building about 62 feet by 93 feet, including a courtyard 34 feet by 46 feet. The boat-house will be a building about 43 feet by 49 feet. Both buildings will be of brick with pile foundations, reinforced concrete floors and slate roofs. Pamphlets containing further information for bidders, forms of proposal, contract and specifications will be mailed to contractors who apply to the Chief Engineer, or may be obtained at his office, 367 Boylston street, Boston, where also plans may be seen. It is expected that the pamphlets will be ready about Monday, August 9, 1909. Sets of plans may be taken from the office upon making a deposit of three dollars for each set taken; this deposit to be refunded upon return of the plans. The printed form must be used in making proposals. The Commission reserves the right to reject any or all proposals and to accept the proposal deemed best for the Commonwealth. HENRY D. YERXA, Chairman; JOSHUA B. HOLDEN, EDGAR R. CHAMPLIN, Charles River Basin Commission; HIRAM A. MILLER, Chief Engineer; WILLIAM S. YOUNGMAN, Secretary.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Superior Court, Suffolk, ss.—To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court, next to be holden at Boston, within and for the County of Suffolk: Respectfully libels and represents Florence G. Jackson of Boston, in said county, that she was lawfully married to John J. Jackson, now of Christobel, Canal Zone, at Boston, on the twenty-ninth day of August, A. D. 1894, and there afterward your libellant and the said John J. Jackson lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit: At Boston aforesaid; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said John J. Jackson being wholly regardless of the same at Boston, on or about the thirtieth day of September, A. D. 1894, and at divers times thereafter was guilty of gross and confirmed habits of intoxication, caused by the voluntary and excessive use of intoxicating liquors; that on or about the same time was guilty of cruel and abusive treatment toward your libellant; that on or about June 20, 1898, and divers times thereafter, in Cuba and Christobel was guilty of such gross and confirmed habits of intoxication, and has continued so guilty up to the date of this libel. Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said John J. Jackson. Your libellant further asks that a decree may be entered granting her the custody of her minor child and a sufficient sum for her support in the nature of alimony.

Dated the third day of August, A. D. 1909.
FLORENCE G. JACKSON.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS. Suffolk, ss. Superior Court—Clerk's Office, Boston, August 4, A. D. 1909.—On the filing of the foregoing libel it is ordered that the libellant give notice to the said libellee, John J. Jackson, of the pendency thereof, and to appear before said court at Boston, within and for the County of Suffolk, on the first Monday of September next, by causing an attested copy of her said libel with this order thereon to be published once a week, three weeks successively, in the Boston American, a newspaper printed in Boston, in the County of Suffolk, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said first Monday of September, and by sending by mail to the last known address of the said libellee as soon as may be a registered letter containing an attested copy of said libel and order thereon; or by causing the said libellee to be served with an attested copy of said libel and order fourteen days at least before said first Monday of September, that the said libellee may then and there show cause why the prayer of said libel should not be granted. FRANCIS A. CAMPBELL, Clerk.

A true copy of libel and order thereon.

Attest: GEORGE P. DRURY, Assistant Clerk.

CITY OF BOSTON—TO CONTRACTORS—The Superintendent of Streets of the City of Boston, office 47 City Hall, invites proposals for sewerage work in Simmons street, between Vernon and Linden Park streets, Roxbury, and giving bond therefor of a surety company approved by the superintendent. Only proposals obtained at said office, filled out, signed by the bidder and left at said office before 12 o'clock M. of Friday, August 13, 1909, with a certified check for $300 payable to and to be the property of the city if the proposal is not carried out, will at said hour and place be publicly opened and read. The proposals must be made in duplicate, the duplicate without the check to be deposited with the City Auditor. The undersigned reserves the right to give preference to the proposals of bidders agreeing to pay the trades unions' rates of wages, and to the right to reject any or all proposals. The proposals should be inclosed in an envelope, sealed and marked: "Proposal for Sewerage Works in Simmons Street." GUY C. EMERSON, Superintendent of Streets, Boston, August 6, 1909.

A FEW PEOPLE DON'T USE AMERICAN WANT ADS

For the same reason that modern methods were once scoffed at by our forefathers, yet, in spite of prejudice, progress has its way. The successful majority employ the "WANT AD WAY" to secure tenants, or buyers, or help, or employment. They employ the AMERICAN, realizing that it is the only paper which will carry their message to nearly all of the people.

Harry Thaw Mistrusted His Lawyer

Can You Actually Believe It? And Isn't It Sad?

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

Harry Thaw, the man who killed Stanford White, was for days on the witness stand, struggling pathetically against the effort to keep him in the insane asylum. He has been cross-examined, brow-beaten, bullied, in a thoroughly disgraceful and unmanly way.

Justice Mills, presiding, cross-examined Thaw and expressed surprise and grief that Thaw should have shown a lack of confidence in his counsel.

You may not believe it, but Justice Mills actually asked Mr. Thaw this question:

> Q.—Now, Mr. Thaw, here you are a man not learned in the law. Why is it that, in the perilous position you were, you would not trust these different lawyers that you had?

The presiding Justice, it seems to us, asked a question that by inference proves the sanity of Thaw if anything could prove it.

This Justice was amazed that young Mr. Thaw, "not learned in the law," should not trust his lawyers.

And in that very courtroom, a few hours before, one of those lawyers hired by Thaw—Hartridge, a man who had taken from Thaw and his mother more than a hundred thousand dollars in cash—had actually appeared and given testimony calculated and intended to put Thaw back in the insane asylum.

It seems to us that if a man ever lived who ought to mistrust his lawyers and the legal profession generally, that man is Harry K. Thaw.

He and his mother paid one lawyer more than a hundred thousand dollars to protect him. That lawyer blandly asks for another hundred thousand dollars, and is suing for that amount. And he isn't getting it.

AND HE APPEARS IN COURT AND TESTIFIES AGAINST THE CLIENT FROM WHOM HE TOOK MORE THAN A HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS!

Justice Mills would have been justified if he had shaken hands with Thaw and said: "In view of all the circumstances, I congratulate you upon the fact that you are sane enough not to trust a lawyer."

Some of the Big Rascals Might Well Be Warned and Instructed by It

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

We publish below a letter from one of our readers and thank him for it in behalf of all the other readers:

No one will dispute that Dr. Eliot has ability in certain lines, but he needs to emerge from the chrysalis of the so-called "higher education" and get in touch with the common herd. Perhaps after he has knocked around the world a while he may modify some of his views. Now, if he had only used the prestige of his name to urge upon commercial pirates, venal legislators and shallow society the reading of such books as Dickens's "Tale of Two Cities," Swift's "Gulliver's Travels," etc., his aim would have been more practical. For instance, the Pressed Steel Car Company might profitably read the following note of warning from the "Tale of Two Cities":

> Along the Paris streets the death carts rumble, hollow and harsh. All the devouring and insatiate monsters imagined since imagination could record itself are fused into the one realization—guillotine. And yet there is not in France, with its rich variety of soil and climate, a blade, a leaf, a root, a sprig, a peppercorn, which will grow to maturity under conditions more certain than those that have produced this horror. CRUSH HUMANITY OUT OF SHAPE ONCE MORE, UNDER SIMILAR HAMMERS, AND IT WILL TWIST ITSELF INTO THE SAME TORTURED FORMS, SOW THE SAME SEED OF RAPACIOUS LICENSE AND OPPRESSION OVER AGAIN AND IT WILL SURELY YIELD THE SAME FRUIT ACCORDING TO ITS KIND. Six tumbrils roll along the streets. Change these back again to what they were, thou powerful enchanter, Time, and they shall be seen to be the carriages of absolute monarchs, the equipages of feudal nobles, the toilets of flaring Jezebels, the churches that are not my father's house, but dens of thieves, the huts of millions of starving peasants.

Dickens's finger was certainly pointed at McKee's Rocks, the conditions at which place are thus described by Father Toner, who lived there nineteen years:

> "Men are persecuted, robbed and killed," he said, "and their wives are abused in a manner worse than death—all to obtain or retain positions that barely keep starvation from the door.
> "The place is a pit of infamy where men are driven lower than the degradation of slaves and compelled to sacrifice their wives or daughters to the villainous foremen and little bosses to be allowed to work. I was allowed to enter the plant at my will a few years ago, but I saw too much of the malicious crime perpetrated daily, and the gates were closed on me. It is too horrible to discuss."

The following from "Gulliver's Travels" might "make pause" some of our official thieves:

> "They (the people of Liliput) look upon fraud as a greater crime than theft, and therefore seldom fail to punish it with death; for they allege that care and vigilance, with a very common understanding, may preserve a man's goods from thieves, but honesty has no fence against superior cunning, and, since it is necessary that there should be a perpetual intercourse of buying and selling and dealing upon credit, where fraud is permitted or connived at, or hath no law to punish it, the honest dealer is always undone, and the knave gets the advantage.
> I remember when I was once interceding with the King for a criminal who had wronged his master of a great sum of money which he had received by order and ran away with, and, happening to tell His Majesty, by way of extenuation, that it was only a breach of trust, the Emperor thought it monstrous in me to offer as a defence the greatest aggravation of the crime, and, truly, I had little to say in return further than the common answer—that different nations had different customs—for, I confess, I was heartily ashamed."

These are only samples of books calculated to impress civic and social obligations. Yours truly,

CHAS. T. PLATT.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

ATTACKS TARIFF

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The God who made this old world and blessed it with things to feed, clothe and shelter the people never intended that a half-dozen men should control all necessaries of life by a protective tariff tax; and the fathers of this Republic never dreamed that a few millionaires, through political bosses, would become arrogant dictators of the national government. Neither did the statesmen who laid the foundation for this government heritage once think that the time would come when the barons of high protection would scorn the rights and wishes of the American people and tax them on all necessaries of life in order to enrich themselves; but that has come.

The Republican party leaders regard the presence of a few money kings as evidence of prosperity, but these men are the product of governmental favoritism, the creatures of an unjust tariff taxation. The laws that made them millionaires have robbed millions of people of the necessaries of life.

But in spite of a subsidized press that seeks to keep the truth from the people, in spite of the disgusting aristocracy of the dollar, that controls the government through the Republican party, the people are slowly but surely being educated to the true condition in this country. The time will surely come when an intelligent electorate will stop sending an Aldrich to a subservient Senate and a Dalzell to rule a less willing House.

JOSEPH H. COLE.

AS TO ANIMAL TORTURE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I read with pleasure, yet with pain, Miss Wilcox's article in the American respecting the treatment that so-called pets often have to endure from their owners.

I read it with pleasure because it warmed my heart to know that Miss Wilcox is so deeply interested in the welfare of our weaker brethren. I read it with pain that such things should be. I should advise that the woman, who evidently lacks imagination, be treated with her own medicine. A few days without meals, a few nights without a home, might make her realize what such things mean.

"A fellow feeling makes us wond'rous kind."

I have often wondered why the clergy, who have the opportunity to direct the world, have given little or no thought to the subject of kindness to our dumb friends.

They preach that we should save our souls, and leave out one of the great ways of doing so. For I am sure that the best Christians are the humane ones, and a man who is good to his beast is the man I would like to take the hand of.

ELBERT HUBBARD'S ARTICLE —ON— Osteopathy and Its Founder

Especially Written for the American

By ELBERT HUBBARD

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

I HAVE been out to Missouri, the State where the people demand visual demonstration.

At Kirksville I met the father and founder of Osteopathy. His name is Dr. Andrew Taylor Still. Dr. Still lives in a forest, but the world has made a path to his door. He is eighty years old, but looks sixty. He is tall, lanky, homely, angular and chews infinite tobacco.

He was burning brush on his farm when I found him. His trousers were tucked in his boots, he wore a blue flannel shirt and his big brown hands were the hands of Esau. When a boy called him to come over to the college to give a lecture he went just as he was without one plea.

Dr. Still looks the toiler—the workingman—one who goes forth to his labors until the evening.

The Doctor thinks he is a backwoodsman. That is where he plays to the gallery of his psychic self. He has posed so long that the pose is absolutely natural. Therefore he is not a poser.

His outside is rough, brusque, but all this seeming coarseness masks a very tender heart. His mind is receptive, sensitive, alert, open to all impressions of earth, air, sky and all living things.

Dr. Still resembles Tolstoi in his habits, in his looks and in his independent fighting attitude of mind. In his youth he would have been a dangerous man to oppose in a physical way. Had he lived in the Far West the butt of his pistol would have been well notched. Now the plane has shifted from the violent to the mental. His only weapons are ideas.

Gets Others to Do His Work

Yet here is the father of Osteopathy, the man who has been, and is, a very important factor in destroying the medical fetich that once held us all in bonds.

Like Tolstoi, Dr. Still would give away all of his money if he could. He probably knows nothing about his financial affairs. If he wants money he asks his wife for it, or his son. It will be remembered that when the wife of Tolstoi tried to have him adjudged insane because he was giving away his property, the Court ruled this: "A man who gives away his money is not necessarily any more insane than a man who keeps to himself all the money he can get."

I have a suspicion that Dr. Still's indifference to finances arises from a firm faith in the ability of his wife and children to look after these things for him. Here again is the unconscious playing of a part. The man gets others to do his work.

Were he actually as innocent and ignorant as he appears, this big and prosperous institution would not have grown up around him.

Also, if he were a pretender, a faker, a four-flusher, it would never have evolved. The man is absolutely honest, but he is not so lacking in worldly wisdom as he thinks he is.

He has the healing touch.

What is the "Healing Touch"?

Bless my soul—I do not know!

But I do know that every little while, all down through history, there have been men who, by laying on of hands, could make the lame to walk, the blind to see, the deaf to hear.

Osteopathy is nominally the science of the bones. Diseases come from mal-adjustments—a pressure on nerve substance by bone substance. Through manipulation a right adjustment is brought about, nerves act normally, circulation is equalized, the secretions flow, elimination follows—the man is well!

The "manips" have a still further use. They impress the patient with the fact that something is being done for him. It is the outside manipulation versus the internal chemical explosion.

Dr. Still was almost alone when thirty years ago he lifted a stern, warning voice against drugs, calling attention to the fact that, while the drug had a direct or primary effect which is known, it also has a secondary effect which cannot be foretold.

Very naturally the medics said things about Dr. Still, and, not being able to meet his arguments, contented themselves by calling him bad names. The gentlest aspersion of the bewhiskered and spectacled ones was to say he was crazy.

Now Dr. Still has won. He is rich, he is honored and he is beloved. He is thought well of in his own town. The man who has all the money he wants, who works with his hands, who sleeps well and eats well, and who is generous and kindly isn't exactly crazy, even though he does not dance on order of Madam Grundy.

Ideas Are Never Found Pure

There are Osteopaths who are given to the common affirmation that Osteopathy has nothing in common with Homeopathy, Mind Cure, Christian Science, Massage or New Thought.

Dr. Still is too big a man to make any such drag-net claim—he knows that ideas are never found pure, any more than metals are. Every idea surging through a personality is a different idea from the same idea voiced by some one else. While Osteopathy is the science of a right adjustment of the bones, it is also very much more. It would be silly to suppose that a man who would overeat or overstimulate, and who was hotly intent on getting money without earning it, could go to an Osteopath and get permanent relief from his physical disabilities.

We are apt to look upon a label as a concrete thing—an entity. You may clap your Christian Science label on a man, and he may yet be little, fussy, dictatorial and dogmatic. Call him a Unitarian, a Rationalist, a New Thoughter—or any "ite" or "ist"—and he may still be without a sense of humor and without gratitude, and therefore probably possess a torpid liver.

Common sense views of life, systematic, congenial work and the spirit of friendship are all-powerful agents for good. You go to Lourdes and you find the crutches piled high; you go to Kirksville and you witness the same phenomenon.

What do we find in common in Lourdes or Kirksville? I'll tell you: You find love, hope, aspiration, imagination, the stimulus of strong personalities and a change of environment.

These are all healing factors, all are prophylactic.

Personally, if I were sick I would never go to Loudres.

I might, however, go to Kirksville.

What would make me choose? Temperament and education.

Osteopathy as taught at Kirksville seems to be the science of common sense. It is based on simple honesty. You consult and advise with the patient. You take him into your confidence, and secure his co-operation.

Neurology plays a big part in all diseases, and this is fully recognized.

At Kirksville no prescriptions are written in Latin. The patient is a pupil of his physician—a student of health. The prescription is understood. He is given lessons in prophylaxsis, and is told that at last the case lies largely in his own hands.

There is a Pauline Osteopathy, practised by the zealous wiseheimers who claim to have discovered the secrets of life and death. All noble truth suffers thus from some of those who advocate it and get it at second hand. I meet lawbreakers constantly who think they are just like me. Osteopathy has suffered from its friends.

To amend what you know with assumption is a very old scheme. To take a basis of common sense and on it build a structure of metaphysical clap-trap is easy in some communities. There are osteopaths and osteopaths.

At Kirksville this attempt to piece out knowledge with pretence is severely denounced. Honesty in the treatment of the sick is just as necessary as honesty in business, aye, or in marriage. So says Old Doctor Still of Kirksville.

Dr. Still is a manifestation of the great unrest and challenge of the time. His influence in breaking up the ankylosis of orthodox medicine has been beneficent and profound, and as such his name will live in history.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

PA was reading in the paiper the other day about How to Maik Hoam Happy. The story wich toald about How to Maik Hoam Happy was in a Sunday paiper, and Ma toald Pa not to beleeve it, but Pa beleeved it jest the same, and he sed Now we are going to be reely happy. We are going to have a party and play sum of these gaims that the paiper tells about.

Ma asked Pa please not to have the party, but Pa is awful stubborn, so he asked a lot of peepul up to the house last nite.

Thare was Mister & Missus Harrigan, & thare was Mister & Missus Mulligan. Thare was sum of Pa's men frends, too wich caim without thare wifes beckaus they was bachelors.

Now, folks, sed Pa, the main reason for my having you all here tonite was perhaps a selfish one. I wanted to have a goodly crowd here, so I could try out sum of these new games. The first of these gaims is a poetry contest. Each of the guests will have a card on wich will be found 4 words at the end of 4 dotted lines. Then thay all looked at thare cards & the cards looked like this:

..........................roof

Then, sed Pa, the idee is to fill in words to maik the stanzy. Now, ladies and gents, take yure corners and git busy when I ring the gong.

Then everybody asked Pa what was the prize, & Pa sed That is part of the gaim. The prize is a seekrat. The one (1) that maiks the best verse gits the prize, but I will not tell you till the gaim is over what the prize is. Now, all you poets, start in scribbeling.

Then all the folks started riteing. Mister Harrigan & Mister Mulligan didn't rite vary fast, & I don't think they liked the gaim. How would it do to change that word "roof" to "ceiling?" sed Mister Harrigan, and then I cud maik it rhyme with plaster. No, sed Pa, you must remember that for tonite you are a poet and not a contractor.

Ha, Ha, sed Mister Mulligan all at onst. I have it. Then Mister Mulligan read his poem. This is the way it went:

Once I was sitting on the roof,
Looking down at a horse's hoof.
I heard the litel sparrows sing;
As a poet I am the sassy thing.

Well, sed Pa, that is a fair effort for a near poet, but I will reserve my decision until we hear from me. Remember, I am not going to be out of this contest. I am fixing up a fine poem myself. The rest of the peepul cuddent make up a poem at all, & I guess thay dident want to. Thay jest yawned. Then I read my poem, it sed

Once I was sleeping on the roof
Of our bilding, wich is fire proof.
Jest then the flames did roar and sing,
& burned up almost everything.

Now listen to mine, sed Pa. But all the nabors was putting on thare coats & hats, & Pa cuddent maik them stay.

I heard Ma laffing at Pa a long time after I had went to bed. Pa gits laffed at moast of the time. What was the prize you were going to give the winner, sed Ma. A picture of myself, sed Pa. Then Ma laffed all the harder. That is a booby prize, Ma sed.
